British Vessel Under Attack On China Coast

HONG KONG (UP)—The Royal Navy announced the British freighter Ss. Hydralock was attacked off the China mainland today by two warships and an airplane which, authorities said, were unidentified.

The ship reported its bridge was sprayed with armor-piercing bullets, but there were "no casualties."

A message from the Hydralock, the navy said, stated it had been intercepted at 5 a.m. (1 p.m. PST), 25 miles southeast of Amoy on the Red-held China mainland by one "unidentified warship."

"The Hydralock was requested to follow one of the warships," the Royal Navy announcement said, "but when she asked where they were bound, there was no reply."

At 9.14 a.m. the Hydralock reported she was "attacked by unidentified aircraft off Chinchu. At 10.23 a.m. the Hydralock reported it was entering the pilotage area of Chuan Chow to which it was bound," the Royal Navy said.

There was no announcement as to what type cargo the ship was carrying.

The Royal Navy was not speculating where the warships came from or what flag they flew.

Earlier, Globe Wireless in San Francisco reported receiving an urgent message that the ship was under attack by a Flying Fortress bomber off the China coast. There was no mention of surface warships at that time.

Globe said the distress message from the vessel was intercepted here after being relayed by the Philippine freighter Dona Nati operating in the same general area.

Inflation Danger 'Crushed'

LONDON (Reuters)—Britain has crushed the danger of inflation even while spending additional millions for its huge social welfare program, Chancellor of the Exchequer R. A. Butler said Friday.

He told the House of Commons there has been a "remarkable improvement" this year in the internal economic position. The outlook for solving the dollar shortage, he said, is "not exactly set fair but it is settled from the point of view of balance of payments. We have reason to go forward with hope."

Butler spoke in the throne speech debate.

In reply to socialist statements that American aid has been doubled in the last 18 months to prop Britain's economy, Butler said dollar aid would be reduced 50 per cent in the 1953-54 year to about $200,000,000.

He expressed hope that British sales of military equipment under the United States "offshore" procurement program would make up for the cut in direct dollar aid.

Justice Relaxes for Romance

British justice has relaxed to permit Tommy Flynn, 22-year-old sailor, to marry the dark-eyed Arab slave girl he smuggled home to England. The lovers were freed from jail, where they faced sentences for violating immigration laws. She had been smuggled from Basra, Iraq, where she worked as a slave. Tommy slipped her aboard ship, past the guards, dressed in men's clothing, and hid her in a cramped locker during the voyage home. Here are Tommy and his bride, Jean Kawahkih, 19, leaving church in Durham after their marriage.—(Central Press Canadian.)

Carbines Bark in Trieste; Students Cry 'Assassins'

Reporter in Piazza Mob Gives Close-Up Story

BY ALEX VALENTINE

He stood beside me as an icy Adriatic wind swept into great Piazza del Unita, Trieste's huge square, which is open on one side to the adjoining seafront.

Thousands of Italians stood with us in the square—all with arms raised menacingly toward the British-officered local police huddled on one side of the vast square. Veins stood out on the demonstrators' scarred necks as they screamed "assassins" at the police who have killed six demonstrators in riots.

In a solid, slow-moving mass, the mob edged forward. With hardly a pause, it swept up chairs and tables from a cafe on the square corner, smashed furniture and used the legs for weapons.

Thousands of hands dipped into pockets and emerged with stones. A man in front—the self-appointed ringleader—shouted "Now!" A thunderstorm of stones thudded against police helmets and uniforms.

"Assassins," chorused the crowd.

Then came the police, arms upraised with clubs. A sickening thud sounded in my ear. The slender student next to me went down like a sack as a club caught him across the shoulders.

WRONG MOVE

I fumbled in my pocket for my press card, then realized the gesture would be misunderstood, and ducked just in time to avoid a swipe of a police club.

Momentarily, the mob was driven back. The rioters crouched panting in doorways at the edge of the square. Police hurled tear gas bombs at them, but they held their ground.

The yelling, pushing, jostling mass moved back into the square and charged at a barricade of police jeeps. Torches made of chair legs were hurled into the jeeps.

A police whistle shrilled above the commotion. There was a moment of deathly silence. Police carbines cracked out—the same chilling sound the rioters heard Thursday night.

The carbines are designed to fire in bursts or single-shot. The police pressed the triggers and sprayed. Bullets filled the square.

They were around our ears, tugging our coatsleeves, spurting from the pavement, ricocheting wildly off walls.

HALF-SAID

I saw a student a few yards from me clutch his throat. He tried to shout "assassins." The word gurgled half-said in his mouth. He fell dead.

A middle-aged man hurried in fright toward the open seafront. He had only a few yards more to go to reach safety when he doubled over, shot in the legs. Seconds later the Piazza was empty of rioters except for those who lay dead or groaning on the blood-soaked pavement. Breathless and wild-eyed, the mob watched from corners. Bullets chipped off masonry and threw splinters in the eyes.

Gradually, the firing returned to single shots. They cracked out every few seconds.

Now came a new sound—the whine of ambulance sirens. Stretcher crews couldn't handle all of the victims. Private cars, their drivers waving white truce handkerchiefs, moved in to help.

Trails of blood led from the square to other victims who had collapsed in nearby streets.

POLICE BOMBED

The square became a battleground soon again as rioters faced the police with both fear and hatred contorting their features. Minutes of uneasy silence passed. A grenade hurtled

U.S. Infantry Stands Guard

TRIESTE (CP)—A company of United States infantry, with bayonets at the ready, was posted early today in Trieste's blood-spattered waterfront square where infuriated mobs fought Trieste police for seven hours Friday.

Six persons had been killed by Trieste police in three days of riotous demonstrations.

Dawn was considered a possible zero hour for new outbursts. There was a possibility of a martial law declaration.

The Allied military government announced Friday night that four demonstrators were killed and about 30 wounded by police gunfire. Three police were injured by a hand grenade.

Two demonstrators were killed and 15 wounded Thursday for a total of six dead and 48 injured in the 72 hours of rioting which was touched off by a police ban on flying the Italian flag over the city hall. Many of the demonstrators were Italian students and three of the dead were 15-year-olds.

Italian diplomats in London and Washington were ordered to protest the bloody incidents, backing up protests from Trieste city officials.

The British and American governments both blamed "irresponsible elements" in Trieste.

Thousands Attack Consulates in Rome

ROME (Reuters) — Riot police were called out Friday as thousands of Italian students attacked British and American embassies and consulates throughout Italy.

At least 50 were arrested in Rome. About 13,000 students here cut classes to protest against police action in Trieste.

The worst disorders were around the British consulate, where several thousand students burst through a police cordon and smashed nearly all the windows. They were finally dispersed by repeated police charges.

The British embassy, several miles from the centre of Rome and protected by thick walls, was not harmed.

The demonstrations were directed against Yugoslavia, the U.S. and Britain, but concentrated largely on Britain. Many Italians feel Britain is not enthusiastic about the Anglo-American decision to turn Zone A of Trieste over to Italy, and is partial to Yugoslavia.

A group of British airline pilots were beaten up in a side street bakery.

Thousands of other demonstrators marched on the U.S. embassy, shouting "Assassins!" and "We want Trieste!"

First Snows Hit Wide U.S. Area

By United Press

A blowing snowstorm hit New York City and the eastern seaboard Friday, while a similar storm swept over the great plains.

An old-fashioned nor'easter raked the east coast with cold, gusty winds and brought the first snow of the winter to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and other seaboard cities.

At New York the snow began falling at 11.30 a.m. and was expected to continue through the night.

Temperatures that hovered around freezing turned some of the snow to sleet and little of it stuck in the metropolis. But the snow was expected to accumulate with colder temperatures after nightfall.

The snow canceled racing at the Garden State track at Camden, N.J., and an aerial show to commemorate the 50th anniversary of flight at New York's Mitchell Field was called off.

The snow piled up to two inches in the nation's capital, heaviest early snow since 1925. Philadelphia got one to two inches.

The Chicago weather bureau said the eastern snow extended from the mountains of South Carolina to New York, with wind gusts reaching 20 miles per hour.

Wintry temperatures extended from the east coast to the great plains where a howling storm dumped up to seven inches of snow on western Nebraska. Communications were disrupted by falling utility lines.

Kansas got snow up to five inches and sleet in the western half of the state. Wind gusts were clocked up to 40 and 50 miles per hour. In some rural areas visibility was reported "practically zero."

Parts of Oklahoma and the Dakotas also felt the western storm.

Skies generally were clear elsewhere in the nation except for more rainy weather in the Pacific Northwest.

Truman Accused Of Promoting Spy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sensational charge by Attorney-General Herbert Brownell that former president Truman promoted a known Soviet spy—who is dead—to high office, exploded a great new controversy Friday night with Truman and the Eisenhower regime virtually accusing each other of lying.

The din of charges and counter charges resounded with as yet unfathomable portents for next year's vital congressional elections.

But one thing appeared clear: The Eisenhower administration, which swept to power on accusations of "the mess" in Washington, has decided to open up with both barrels on the Communists-in-government issue.

Friday's row opened with a statement by Brownell in a Chicago speech that the late Harry Dexter White, former assistant secretary of the treasury, was a spy for Russia.

Brownell said the Federal Bureau of Investigation collected the evidence of White's spying and submitted a report to Truman through his military aide, Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, in December, 1945.

"In the face of this information, and incredible though it may seem," Brownell said, "President Truman on January 23, 1946, nominated White . . . for the even more important position of executive director for the United States in the International Monetary Fund."

Brownell added that the FBI sent a second report to Vaughan on White, February 4, 1946.

The White House said Truman signed White's commission by appointment February 7, 1946—three days after the second FBI warning.

CHARGES DENOUNCED

Truman quickly denounced Brownell's charges as "political." He said that "as soon as we found out White was wrong we fired him." Asserting that the Eisenhower administration was "desperate" because of Republican losses in Tuesday's elections, the ex-president said "they'll stop at nothing, lies or anything else."

This brought a swift retort from the White House that Truman's statement about firing White was "not true."

"Mr. White was not fired," said press secretary James C. Hagerty. "He resigned."

Yugoslavia Denounces Violence

BELGRADE (AP) — Yugoslavia Friday night denounced the violence in Trieste and called for the British and American envoys here to see that a five-power conference is called at once to settle the whole conflict between Yugoslavia and Italy.

The press and radio charged the demonstrations were rigged by the Italian government as a measure of "bloodshed diplomacy."

Foreign Secretary Koca Popovic reportedly urged an immediate meeting of Britain, the U.S., France, Yugoslavia and Italy, and leaving present occupation of Trieste unchanged.

Russians Stage New Sweep

'Spies' Rounded Up

BERLIN (AP)—Russian zone secret police said Friday night that at least 100 East Germans have been snatched in a new, sweeping "spy" roundup.

The figure was made public by Erich Mielke, deputy chief of the force, who is currently making a round of speeches to whip up public sentiment against "Western agents, spies and saboteurs."

The new culprits are evidently in addition to those the Communists swept into their jails after the June 17 uprisings in a manhunt that stretched into the fall months.

The "one hundred" are all in the employ of the West German Republic and the "American counter-intelligence corps," Mielke declared. They were equipped with radio transmitters, "secret instructions" and weapons, he said.

The disclosure implied that a wave of trials is in the offing.

Obscure Spy Guided Wolfe To Win Battle for Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Lyman Jackes, Toronto historian and author, says the British won the Battle of the Plains of Abraham, which ended French rule in Canada 200 years ago, by espionage.

He said Thursday that Major Patrick MacKellar, a British agent, whom he called one of Canada's most remarkable heroes, paved the way for the British capture of Fort Louisburg and Quebec in the 1700's during the struggle between Britain and France in the Seven Years' War.

Mr. Jackes told the Toronto Rotary Club that MacKellar's log books were ordered forever sealed by the British cabinet for fear of stigmatizing descendants of Canadians who aided him in his work.

He said the story is partly confirmed by archivists in Ottawa, who admit having a few memoranda of Major MacKellar.

Mr. Jackes said he learned of Major MacKellar's exploits through a chance meeting with a clerk of the British War Office.

GREAT MYSTERY

"This MacKellar is the great mystery man of Canada. Up until a few years ago he was totally unknown to historians."

The author showed slides of MacKellar's only opened log book, which he said was brought to Canada in a safe at the request of the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Ottawa Museum authorities deny having such a book.

Mr. Jackes said he talked with Major MacKellan's descendants in Kent, England, and saw a portrait of the major. With it was a letter from the British War Office forbidding reproduction of the picture. He added:

"Discovery of the records in War Office cellars was one of the greatest discoveries in Canadian history.

"It is to Major MacKellar that Maj.-Gen. James Wolfe owes his place in history.

IN BACK DOOR

"It was MacKellar's espionage which took Field Marshal Jeffrey Amherst and his second-in-command, General Wolfe, through Fort Louisburg's back door in 1758. He learned of a secret trail leading from a cove 12 miles up the coast to the back door of the mighty Cape Breton fortress."

Mr. Jackes said he is certain the sealed books tell how Major MacKellar smuggled himself into the fortress of Quebec the following year to enlarge upon a map of the fortifications which he obtained while serving as a British agent in Paris.

Major MacKellar told General Wolfe of the path up the cliffs from the St. Lawrence River to the Plains of Abraham and on September 13, 1759, scaled the bluffs with 27,000 British regulars.

Tank-Infantry Team Advances in Indo-China

Red Agent Linked To Radar Centre

WASHINGTON (UP) — Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy said Friday a "top Communist undercover agent" has been "in telephone contact" with the army radar centre at Fort Monmouth, N.J., as recently as a week ago.

The Wisconsin Republican told reporters his Senate investigating subcommittee has "no positive evidence" the agent stole any "material," but he said the man has been making telephone "contacts" with Fort Monmouth, averaging more than 12 a week for "no legitimate reason."

McCarthy has been investigating alleged espionage at Fort Monmouth and other Signal Corps installations.

He announced Friday he will broaden the inquiry to certain private firms doing secret military work. He said he has "reason to believe" Communists are working for the firms. He did not identify either the Communists or the firms.

Neither did he identify the telephone "agent" or the people he telephones except to say that he is a "technician" who used to work at Fort Monmouth.

Mortal Wallop Struck at TV—It Tends To Broaden the Wrong End

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Saucy Corinne Calvet struck a mortal blow at television Friday with the observation it is ruining the American female's figure. The blond Parisienne says the feminine figure in this country is getting to be out of proportion—a result of too much sitting before TV sets. "I know what I'm talking about," Corinne said unhappily. "In the past two years I have put two inches on my hips—just from watching television. And I know it's not just because I'm two years older. Two years ago my hips were 33. Today the back of my lap has expanded," she said. "This is a very important discovery and women must do something about it if we are not to become a nation of peasant-type females. Women are sitting entirely too much, watching television, and they are getting Amazonic where they don't want it," she continued. "It's even worse for women who sit at typewriters or desks in their jobs. The working girl is truly in danger of looking like a blimp." Corinne produced a sheaf of photographs taken of herself during the past three years. She laid them out on the floor in chronological order and bemoaned the advent of television. "You see? Look at this one—taken two years ago. Now just look," Corinne pouted, performing a very French pirouette. She was wearing pink shorts—still size 33—and a striped knit sweater. "Of course," she explained, "I think this change is not so bad for me, but I want to stop right where I am. Just think of the poor girls who were 36 or 37 in the hips before television came along." The actress scooped up her pictures and came up with a measuring tape. She whipped it around her hips and shook her head when 35 was the smallest measurement she could muster. "Either women must take special exercises during the day or they must stand when they watch television," Corinne said. "It would be terrible if television turned American women into the widest females in the world."

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

CURL up with a good book? Don't be so old-fashioned. There are indications that the printed page is going the way of the stone tablet inscribed with hieroglyphics.

Students of one American high school, anyway, don't care for reading. Time magazine reports that a questionnaire on reading versus television habits, submitted to 37 "typical" sophomores of Hope High School, Providence, Rhode Island, drew answers like this:

"I'd rather sit and look than sit and exercise my brain." "I suffer when I read." "A masterpiece is something you don't understand." "I'm going to read a book some time. I saw a quiz show and the contestant lost the jackpot because he hadn't read a book."

"Who wants to read? It makes you feel petunia" (local student slang for sissy).

Thirty-seven students of one American high school scarcely make a fair sample. Such a questionnaire is a thin straw in the wind. It raises the suspicion, without supplying the proof, that television has done what radio and movies both failed to do: arouse impatience against the printed word.

The most interesting statement among those recorded in Providence was that of the student who said he would "rather sit and look than sit and exercise my brain."

To look upon the act of reading in itself as "exercise for the brain" is a new and curious attitude, at least for a high school student.

Most older people who have reached high school level or above regard reading as a natural process, like walking. To such people, reading becomes strenuous only when it deals with a difficult subject, just as walking becomes strenuous when the path leads over nasty obstacles.

Yet here we have a lad who looks upon ALL reading as a mental gymnastic.

If these students had said that they read only Mickey Spillane, or love confession magazines, or pornographic books, there would have been room for hope. Perhaps they would develop a taste for richer, truer and more complicated fare.

Unfortunately they have announced, with pride and relish, that they never read anything.

* * *

Some people may feel, as I flippantly suggested just now, that writing is an outdated means of communication, and that no effort should be made to preserve it.

Reading and writing have been in the grasp of the masses for only a short time in history. Perhaps those skills will again become the possession of a few, while the many depend on the picture and the spoken word for their knowledge of the world.

Pictures and sound have useful qualities of vividness and exactness. But printed words have useful qualities too. As tools of learning they have a thoroughness of definition which is lacking in other media. As keys to entertainment, they unlock a rich storehouse of mental images. They spur imagination.

If the printed word falls into disuse, the quality of imagination will largely fall into disuse, too. This will become a flat, shallow world, full of brittle, mindless people.

But perhaps we will learn to combine pictures, written words and spoken words in a wise proportion.

Luckily, for the time being, television sets are too expensive for the average thrifty Canadian to buy.

Haighs Cleared of Charge Under Wartime Regulation

A charge against Harry and Florence Haigh of operating a multiple dwelling in a single dwelling area was dismissed in city police court Thursday.

"The by-law is clear on the prohibition of multiple dwellings in that area, but the wartime rental regulation cited at the trial is very broad in its wording," Magistrate H. C. Hall said.

REGULATION CITED

"The regulation says that permission must be obtained from the wartime board, but to my knowledge no such board exists anymore," he said.

"Therefore, because of the wording of the wartime regulation, that has never been repealed, this charge must be dismissed."

A charge of obstructing entry of the building inspector, read against Florence Haigh, was then tried.

William Oosterink, city building inspector, told the court he had gone to the Haigh residence in the company of the fire chief and the sanitary inspector.

FRONT DOOR OPEN

He said they found the front door open and knocked, but got no answer. After going to the back of the house, the three men returned to the front and entered the hallway, where Fire Chief Frank Briers knocked on one of the inside doors.

"Mrs. Haigh then made an appearance and told us to "be off. Harry would be awfully sore if he knew I had let you in."

"I told her we had come to make an inspection, but she [illegible]"

J. A. Byers, counsel for Mrs. Haigh then began his cross examination of the building inspector.

"Were you frightened?" he asked.

NEVER FRIGHTENED

"I'm never frightened," Mr. Oosterink answered. "I just wanted to find out if she was in."

"Oh, so you were just making a social call, is that it?" Mr. Byers asked.

"No. I wanted to inspect the premises," was the answer.

Mr. Byers then read section 208 from the building by-law, allowing the building inspector to enter any building under construction, alteration, renovation or removal.

"Were any of these things being done to the house?" he asked.

Mr. Oosterink said a permit had been taken out by Harry Haigh in May to install bathroom fixtures and there were also tenants living upstairs that he wanted to know about.

Fire escapes also had to be inspected, Mr. Oosterink said.

"Were you deputized by the fire chief, and in uniform as the fire by-law instructs," Mr. Byers asked.

"No."

Fire Chief Frank Briers then testified, giving the same detail as Mr. Oosterink about the visit he made with Mr. Oosterink and the sanitation inspector.

THREE ON INSPECTION

"And all three of you went on the one inspection trip?" Mr. Byers asked.

"Yes," the fire chief answered.

"Quite a raid," Mr. Byers quipped.

In his defense, Mr. Byers contended that the building by-law did not allow Mr. Oosterink to enter the premises because he did not know if the work on the bathroom had begun.

"He didn't even ask Mrs. Haigh if he could inspect it, and he still does not know if the work has been done."

He said the building inspector cannot inspect a premises simply because the work is contemplated.

"The by-law allows him to go to the residence, not in it."

LEFT WHEN TOLD

"Mr. Oosterink left when Mrs. Haigh told him to "be off," because he knew he was out of line. He has said himself that he had no other option. Therefore I contend that as the building inspector he was committing a trespass and Mrs. Haigh was entitled to order him off, and push him off if she felt big enough and strong enough."

To define the word "obstruct," Mr. Byers produced an Oxford dictionary, short version.

"How many columns of explanation," Magistrate Hall asked.

"Only about two inches, your honor, but if you wish I'll bring the long edition into court."

"I think the short edition will do," the magistrate said.

JUST EMPTY WORDS

In his final summing up, Mr. Byers said Mrs. Haigh's "obstruction," was just empty words, that no threat had been made, either verbally or physically.

"The bathroom permit story seems to be an afterthought. Mr. Oosterink has even fallen back on the fact he is an assistant fire marshal. When he made the visit he had seen and found out all he wanted to know by his own admission."

City Prosecutor Alan Bigelow contended Mr. Oosterink was abiding by the by-law, that he could never make any inspection if he was not allowed on the property.

"When Mrs. Haigh told him to leave he did what any conscientious city employee would do, he must make himself agreeable to the public."

"He is a public servant, so he withdrew gracefully," he said.

Magistrate Hall then remanded the case for judgment until November 10.

Mother and Aunt on Famous Bride Ship

Operetta 'Real' for Sisters

Twin sisters, Mrs. Harriet E. Hubbard and Mrs. S. E. Youngs, who will be 86 next month, are eagerly anticipating the operetta, "The Bride Ship," which will be presented November 13 and 14 by the Esquimalt Lions Club.

Their mother and their aunt were passengers on the original bride ship which landed at Esquimalt on September 17, 1862.

These grand old ladies, whose mother told them first-hand stories of the ship's passage and arrival, will be guests of the Lions Club at the operetta November 13.

STORIES BECOME REAL

In Madame W. Lugrin Fahey's production of "The Bride Ship" they will see the stories their mother told them come to life.

The twin sisters are always careful to point out that their mother and aunt were not included in the "sixty marriageable lassies" who came on the Bride Ship destined for the colonial and matrimonial market.

Rather, the two of them were cabin passengers coming from England to Victoria with the expectation of teaching.

But the two met husbands in Victoria.

The two Townsend sisters became Mrs. Charlotte Townsend (the husband was no relation although the name is the same), and Mrs. Louisa Mallandaine.

MOTHER OF SISTERS

Mrs. Townsend was the mother of the sisters who now live in Victoria.

Among the specially-prized possessions the two Townsend sisters brought with them on the Tynemouth in 1862, were their piano and a sewing machine, both rather rare in the colony in those days.

There were more than 300 passengers on the Tynemouth on that memorable voyage. But "the most noticeable living freight was an invoice of 60 young ladies" destined for the matrimonial market."

A matron and a cleryman had charge of them. They were well chaperoned and were not permitted to take any part in the social life on board ship.

ALL COAST INFORMED

News of the Bride Ship spread all up and down the Pacific Coast.

Plans were made in San Francisco port to kidnap some of the young passengers, but long before the ship sailed into the Golden Gate, strict orders had gone forth forbidding the young women to go ashore.

In Esquimalt harbor the girls were transferred to HMS Forward and brought to Victoria harbor where they were transferred by small boats to the landing stage in front of the government buildings.

ALL MEN ON HAND

The male population turned out in full force to get a look at the girls who were lined up in two's in front of the government buildings.

The girls were pretty and buxom, ranging from 12 to 18, and just about everything a man could desire.

Laundry tubs of hot water had been placed in front of the parliament buildings so the girls could wash their clothes on arrival.

Many and varied are the stories told about the girls, but it is known definitely that half of them married soon after arrival.

EXCITEMENT CAPTURED

In her smooth-moving operetta Madame Fahey has captured the excitement and romance of the arrival of the Bride Ship.

The complete cast will include 35 performers and 16 of these will take part of brides.

Kathleen Costain is in charge of choreography and dancers will be from the Florence Clough School of the Dance.

Performances will be at Esquimalt High School on November 13 and 14.

Garden Notes

Keep Lawn Clear Of Fallen Leaves

BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of the most urgent jobs in the garden at this time of the year is the removal of fallen leaves from the lawn. If wet leaves are left lying on the lawn for even a few days, the grass will become mildewed, and if this is not controlled promptly, the roots may die.

Leaf raking used to be a rather dismal chore, when you had to stop every few minutes and clear the rake of leaves, but with the new, light, plastic rakes, with blunt teeth, the job has become a pleasure.

If, by any chance, the leaves have remained too long on your lawn, and the grass has become mildewed, dust the affected portions immediately with sulphur, or, if you have no sulphur handy, water with washing soda, half a cupful to the gallon of water.

NOVEMBER PLANTING

The chief reason for planting roses in November is because the bushes are now in a quiescent state, and the whole machinery of each plant is only just "ticking over" until it becomes stimulated by warmer weather in the spring.

The soil still retains enough warmth to assist in the formation of new roots, to replace those lost during transit from nursery to garden. Where the soil is very heavy and waterlogged, however, time would be better spent in preparing the ground for planting in the spring. Roses will thrive in any well-drained and manured soil, but the manure must be kept below the level of the newly-planted roots.

I don't think much of this idea of putting on a winter mulch of manure around the roses. The manure packs down and forms a cold, clammy, air-excluding poultice. Keep the mulch off until after the bushes are pruned in the spring.

KEEP CLEAR OF STEMS

Fruit trees and bushes, on the other hand, enjoy a winter mulch of compost or manure, but don't push this material close up to the stems—keep it clear by several inches. The mulch provides a cover for pests, and if you observe the birds in winter, you will see that the circle of bare soil between the mulch and the stem or trunk is a happy hunting ground for them.

In the greenhouse, at this season of the year, it is important to practice an almost surgical cleanliness, to avoid diseases or pests. With chrysanthemum leaves, for instance, it is just plain foolish to pull off dead leaves, full of leaf-mining larvae, and throw them on the floor or under the bench.

LITTLE BLACK FLIES

They will only hatch out into little black flies, about one-third the size of a housefly, to perpetuate the infection. It is a good idea to get the habit of carrying a paper bag with you in the greenhouse, and put all dead and infected material in it to be burnt promptly.

Rites Monday For F. Diment

Last rites for Frederick Diment, 81, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital Thursday, will be held in Hayward's funeral chapel, Monday at 3 p.m.

Born in Seaton, Devonshire, England, Mr. Diment had lived in B.C. since 1912. His home was on Anchorage Avenue, Esquimalt.

He is survived by his wife, Henrietta, at home; three sons, Frederick, Jack, and Richard; one daughter, Mrs. C. E. Hawthorne, all of Victoria; and eight grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

U.S. Set for War, Vishinsky Asserts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia's Andrei Vishinsky charged Friday that the United States bases its foreign policy "on the number and quality of its battalions". He said the U.S. is preparing for a new war and the West expects to win it by using the most dangerous weapons of mass destruction.

The first Soviet foreign minister of the Soviet Union, in a return to the Stalin-era language, lashed at American and Allied policies as the United Nations General Assembly's political committee began debate on the disarmament issue.

Vishinsky's strong words were in line with fiery statements in Moscow at celebrations of the 36th anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution. They were in sharp contrast to the often milder tone he took after Prime Minister Stalin died.

Vishinsky called on the disarmament commission to work out proposals for the reduction of armaments and armed forces, to prohibit the atomic weapon unconditionally and to institute an international control organ.

Britain's minister of state, Selwyn Lloyd, introduced a resolution sponsored by 14 countries calling on the disarmament commission to resume work.

Vinshinsky said the resolution was not acceptable. He said it still contains the principle of setting up atomic controls by stages and emphasized that the Russians opposed such a procedure.

The West has charged that the Russians would not obey a United Nations order banning atomic and hydrogen bombs. Vishinsky scoffed at that Friday, saying: "I am ready to guarantee that we not only will not produce atomic weapons, we will not spend a thousandth of a millionth of a ruble on such production."

Bullets Fell Rioters

through the air. There was a flash and explosion, followed by anguished cries from police.

The police re-opened fire. More rioters fell. Others ran back to their doorways.

[illegible] sounded down the street. There was a mighty shout from the crowd as American trucks raced into the square. Out jumped troops in steel helmets, bayonets glistening in the sun.

The rioters began cheering, clapping their hands and stamping their feet. For nearly 10 minutes they cheered. They tried to shake the Americans' hands. Then came British troops, also with bayonets. The British marched through the square.

This time the rioters booed and jeered. Here come Colonialists," they shouted.

The British troops remained in the square only until an Italian flag, flying at half-staff on the town hall for Thursday's riot victims, was hauled down on police orders.

It looked for a moment as if the infuriated rioters would hurl themselves against the British bayonets. The British troops marched into the Allied occupation headquarters on the square. The Americans disappeared inside city hall with the police.

Several times during the afternoon, the demonstrators crept toward the hall and drew police fire, but the climax had been reached with the arrival of the soldiers.

Job for Pills, Needle, Rope

Inmate of Prison Taken Off Tower

WALLA WALLA, Wash (AP)—It took knockout pills, a hypodermic needle and a rope to get a Washington State Prison inmate down from a 100-foot water tower Friday after three hours of caper-cutting and threats to jump.

Prison officials identified him as Irvin Squires, about 25, who has served eight years of a life term for a Seattle murder.

The tall, slender inmate climbed to the tower unnoticed at mid-morning.

For some time, he sat on a tank-top knob. Then he climbed down to a narrow platform where he danced and shouted, ignoring all pleas to come down.

Early in the afternoon, Warden John Cranor sent a man to the top. He succeeded in getting a hammer away from Squires.

Then Cranor climbed up with a cup of coffee loaded with dissolved knockout pills. He persuaded Squires to drink it, but the pills had little effect and he still insisted he would jump.

Meanwhile, a prison hospital attendant sneaked around the tower and climbed to the top on the other side. Armed with a hypodermic needle, the attendant grabbed Squires and gave him a shot.

Cranor said they then succeeded in roping the man and lowering him to the ground.

Prison psychiatrists described Squires as a "borderline case."

INTERPRETING THE NEWS

BY J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP News Analyst

The latest Russian note to the Western powers has brought international relations full circle to the point where they were before the death of Stalin.

The reaction of Western diplomatic [illegible] is to get back to their preparedness plans, bringing Germany actively into the defense line.

Russia, they perceive, is sticking to her same old policies; Power politics backed by an intensive military program; consolidation of her hold over her satellites; creation of situations which will tempt the West to overstrain for preparedness at the expense of a stable economy; and divisive tactics designed to pave the way first for infiltration and, if that fails, piecemeal military conquest.

The uncertainty and confusion created by the "Malenkov honeymoon" is over, as far as senior officials are concerned.

This situation was exemplified in Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's speech to the Commons after the note was received.

He agreed that the door should always be kept open, but stuck doggedly to his main thesis that while the door was open, no further delay must be permitted in efforts to fill the military vacuum in Germany.

The first carload of fruit from British Columbia's Okanagan valley was shipped in 1903.

Plebiscite Set On Airport In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (BUP) — City council decided Friday to submit a December plebiscite to civic voters on the sale of the International Airport to the federal government for $1,000,000.

The move reversed an earlier decision to hold off a vote until sale agreement was reached, then place a by-law before property owners only.

Transport Minister Lionel Chevrier, however advised the December poll, pointing out that sale negotiations will probably take many months.

Aldermen will consider a draft of the plebiscite next Monday.

The vote will not bind the city to action, but is a poll of public opinion. A later vote of property owners will be needed to approve the terms of the sale.

TORONTO (CP) — The law firm of Robinson and Haines said Thursday it has been retained by Igor Gouzenko, the Russian embassy clerk who exposed his country's wartime espionage in Canada, in a libel action against the Toronto Daily Star and one of its reporters, Gwyn Thomas. The action will allege that Mr. Gouzenko was libelled in a Star story October 30.

Finlayson Attacks 'Picked Candidate'

Election of Finance Minister Einar Gunderson, whom he labeled "Bennett's hand-picked candidate" in Victoria riding November 24, will mean "continuation of defeat, dictatorship, doubt and confusion" in B.C. government, Deane Finlayson, B.C. Progressive Conservative leader, charged in Vancouver Friday night.

Mr. Finlayson, who is running against Mr. Gunderson, continued the attack he launched earlier this week on the premier and finance minister, in an address to the annual meeting of the Point Grey PC association.

The Tory chief declared "the premier would like us to believe the only question confronting the Victoria electorate is whether Victoria is going to have a cabinet minister, but it is not as simple as that."

He said the voters actually faced a choice of one of two courses:

"Either they go for the premier's progressive hand-picked candidate and a continuation of defeat, dictatorship, doubt and confusion in the government, whose leader persists in misleading in untrue statements . . . or they vote against Mr. Gunderson to indicate that the public wishes to put an end to such shabby methods and have a return to honest government," Mr. Finlayson contended.

He charged Premier Bennett with "placing political expediency above regards of the high office he holds" and added:

"I would like to sit opposite the premier as the member for Victoria to remind him that in B.C. we place honesty and integrity in the elected members of our legislature above political expediency and above the promise of cabinet representation."

Mr. Finlayson claimed "to declare a debt reduction of $34,000,000 in 15 months and at the same time try to justify millions in new taxation as the premier and Mr. Gunderson are trying to do, is an insult to the intelligence of the public."

Army Invites Teen-Agers To Take Tour

OTTAWA, (CP)—In a move designed to spur recruiting, the Canadian army has issued an "open house" invitation to teen-aged youths across the country.

An army announcement said the purpose of the invitation is to give potential recruits a "preview" of life in the army. It said those who accept the invitation will be treated "as honored guests for the duration of their visit."

Under the scheme, boys contemplating a military career will be taken on conducted tours of army camps and installations. They must be accompanied by a civilian teacher or "guidance counsellor"

Solo Ocean Flights Face Cool Shoulder

OTTAWA (CP)—Any civilian pilot attempting a solo trans-Atlantic hop from Canada can count on little support or sympathy from the Canadian government.

He or she, on the other hand, can expect opposition from two large associations of fellow pilots in the United States and Canada.

This picture has emerged from a three-way exchange of letters among the department of transport, the Canadian Owners and Pilots Association and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association, of Washington.

COPA, formed earlier this year and numbering about 800 members, is an affiliate of AOPA, representing some 40,000 members across the United States. A joint aim is "to encourage safer flying."

The transport department and the two civilian pilot groups agree on the undesirability of trans-Atlantic flights by single-engined aircraft. But COPA and AOPA want to know why some United States fliers have been permitted to make such flights from east coast Canadian ports.

Describing trans-Atlantic solo hops as "hazardous and foolhardy" COPA said three American pilots recently crossed the ocean in alleged violation of Canadian air transport regulations. It named the pilots as Max Conrad, a Mr. Gluckman and Mrs. Marion Rice Hart.

In a written reply to COPA, the transport department said that the "probabilities of becoming lost are very grave" and added that in such cases the Canadian government is responsible for search and rescue operations in large areas of the north Atlantic.

Canadian air transport regulations provide for the prosecution of any pilot leaving Canada on a trans-Atlantic flight in a single-engined aircraft registered in this country. In the case of foreign planes, however, the ruling is not quite so clear.

Athabaskan Due Home December 11

OTTAWA (CP) — The destroyer Athabaskan, boasting the longest Korean service of any Canadian ship, will be home for Christmas.

The navy said Friday the Athabaskan will leave the Far East November 18, one week earlier than originally scheduled, to make sure her crew members can reach their home towns by December 25. The ship is now scheduled to dock at Esquimalt December 11.

Now completing her third tour of duty in the Korean theatre, the Athabaskan has been away from her Canadian base for the last 14 months. All together, she served 30 of the 37 months of hostilities in Korean waters.

The navy said the Canadian ship has piled up one of the longest service records of any warship serving under United Nations command. Her commanding officer is Cmdr. John C. Reed of Toronto.

HMCS Crusader, which sailed from Esquimalt last October 18, will take over the Athabaskan's duties.

Changing Age Relationships

SENIOR age groups in Canada are rising in proportion to the population of the nation, part of the trend which has become marked in the last few decades with the broad advance of medical and other sciences against disease and factors restricting longevity. In practical terms, the continued employment of individuals over 40 years of age at jobs for which they have been trained and in which they are skilled, is on the way towards becoming something of a national necessity. The sociological consequences of failing to provide proper occupational outlets for men and women still in their prime are well known. To be busy at something is a human necessity.

One hears much these days of the problems of leisure in an age when machinery has picked up much of the human load. High among such problems, however, stands the case of those in their middle years who have leisure which they do not want, idleness which is not part of their own choosing. With urbanization continuing apace and a growing pressure for work openings available in most Canadian cities, the situation facing a displaced man or woman in industry is none too enviable. Where individuals may cope here and there with their own difficulties, it is the intensification of such a trend which should give warning to us that here is a sociological pattern, and one which will require earnest attention.

The nearest, and perhaps simplest, solution—to retain middle aged men and women in those jobs which they know best how to do—has been opposed by industry in the past on various practical grounds. Contributory pension schemes, for example, are based on early employment and long contribution. Yet if the physical and economic consequences of the new longevity are to be faced and dealt with there may have to be considerable revision of present-day patterns of thought in industry in that regard.

The saving factor in a complex, human problem is that the over-40 employee is most often a highly skilled individual, steady in his habits, and loyal to his source of support. It should not be beyond human devising one day to substitute skill and capacity for weight of years as the test for efficacy in industrial or other employment. Something of the kind will need to be done if Canada is to keep abreast of its opportunities.

Mr. St. Laurent's Two Voices

CANADIAN Pacific Airlines' application for authority to run an air cargo service between Vancouver and Montreal in competition with Trans-Canada Airlines has evoked from Prime Minister St. Laurent a declaration of policy in strange contradiction to his own recently-stated belief in the right of industry to run its affairs without governmental interference. That philosophy was contained in a speech he made in Montreal a few weeks ago. The prime minister said then: "It will be the practice of any government with which I am associated that, except in grave emergencies, government will not interfere in the affairs of business as long as it is operating legally and is performing a public service."

Standing alone, that statement would appear to clear the way for cabinet to approve CPA's application. No one has suggested that CPA would be acting illegally in operaing an air freight service and it would be absurd to contend that by competing with the government-owned TCA the company would create a "grave emergency," a term reserved for such conditions as war or national disaster.

Soon after he had expounded that excellent doctrine, however, the prime minister proceeded to repudiate it. Discussing the CPA case before the Air Industries and Transport Association's annual meeting, Mr. St. Laurent stated that in dealing with the application the government would be guided by "whether or not the public can be served better by two competing lines, and what is best for the industry itself." This is an astonishing reversal in practice of what had been declared in principle. There being no question of illegality in operations, or of the existence of a state of grave emergency, if the government abided by the principle enunciated by the prime minister there should be no interference with CPA's right to risk capital in a competitive venture. Yet the government in this instance sets itself up as an arbiter not merely of what is good for the country but also what is good for industry. If that is not interference with the affairs of business, what is?

Seldom has a government leader proclaimed, within the space of a few days, doctrines so patently at variance with one another, or departed in practice so far from precedent. Mr. St. Laurent leaves the public guessing: does he stand for free enterprise or doesn't he?

By Christmas Perhaps

IF so many people at the City Hall were not seized with a penchant for advancing reasons why things cannot be done, rather than adopting the opposite approach, matters might be dealt with more expeditiously. So simple a project as the placing of a few seats in the main city shopping area for example has taken weeks and weeks of humming and hawing, and it is not settled yet. It has reached the stage where the public works committee has approved the spending of $400 to provide 10 benches at downtown bus stops, but the gamut of the council as a whole has to be run and possibly other inhibitions will disclose themselves.

There never has been any idea that in time benches would be sought for all 973 bus stops in the Greater Victoria area, the reason advanced by the B.C. Electric for not sharing the seat costs with the city and an exaggeration of the whole proposal. All that was envisaged was a limited number of benches in the downtown district to provide an easement for elderly people and tired shoppers. This was something that decisive thinking could have settled in very little time; no major considerations were involved.

As everyone knows the city could have had these seats free, even with some slight revenue into the bargain, except for a queer aversion to advertising. Belated conversion to the idea that some local firms might be willing to sponsor the seats with a "courtesy" mention, something that might easily have been determined long ago, did evince itself this week but the committee has itself assumed the onus of supply. Possibly by the time Christmas shoppers are exhausting themselves in the annual gift-buying rush the seats will have made their appearance, unduly and needlessly delayed but nevertheless by then very welcome indeed.

NOT HARVEY, ISOBEL

Sir,—I want to thank the RCMP, Langford fire department and Mr. and Mrs. Austin Yates for finding and caring for the white rabbit found Halloween night — not "Harvey," but Isobel. Isobel is our little girl's pet and someone with a very warped sense of humor smashed the pen on Halloween and let her go. Many thanks to those responsible for her coming home.

MONEY WITHOUT WORK

Sir,—In a time of recession or slackness of trade a Social Credit government will certainly try to apply the monetary theories of Major Douglas. In such case Socred theory says in effect: Look, the people don't have enough money to buy all the goods on the stores shelves; let's give them some. Of course, this is a most attractive program; money for nothing appeals to everyone. But unfortunately it is dishonest for government has no money of its own at all; it only has the power by taxation to take the money out of one set of citizens' pockets and then give it to another set of people.

We have to realize that giving the people pieces of paper with numbers printed on them does not increase the quantity of goods produced one scrap, and if more people should try to buy without increasing the goods available, the end result is, and always has been, a leap upward in prices. Then the people will need still more money even to keep going.

If people don't believe this, why is the dollar now down in buying power to less than 50 cents and still falling? A result not indeed of Social Credit, but very largely of government policy, particularly as regards the $2,000,000,000 odd dollars the Canadian government is pouring out every year in the present appalling world armaments race.

Major Douglas, founder of Social Credit, suggested that we have a national dividend; a cheque every month of say $10 a month for everyone who needed it, and don't we all! Another of Socred's attractive lures. But if the government starts a national dividend of $10 a month, what in the world is there to prevent it adding another cipher, making the cheque $100, or a second cipher and make everyone rich on $1,000 a month? Then we can all stay at home and starve! For who will labor and sweat producing goods, delivering milk, mail, etc., in all weather, when we can sit comfortably at home awaiting the national dividend?

There is no way of raising ourselves by pulling on our bootstraps. If money can be had without working for it, isn't it quite obvious that its value will quickly drop to nothing, thereby injuring all the honest folk who do work.

What the people want is the chance of honest work within their capabilities at wages which are fair and equitable to all. We want money which will buy things and have a stable value so that our savings will be there in case of need. Now they are melting away like snow in the sun of inflation. But credit for everyone is a mirage, whether it is social or not.

By FRANK KELLEY

IN the early 1800's a monument of fair proportions was erected in Upper Town, Quebec. On it two names were engraved. I presume that granite shaft is still standing; but whenever it comes to mind, as it does occasionally, one cannot help but wonder why it was that this particular shaft should bear the names of two generals who fell while fighting one another in battle.

That monument, I was given to understand at one time, was reared in honor of Wolfe and Montcalm; and the cost of its erection was shared through contributions from both French and English Canadian citizens. Just what sparked the joint effort of honor at the time may not be clear, but a good guess would be that the object of the people contributing to a single monument was to establish a spirit of harmony among all classes of both races.

In addition to the names engraved on the monument some five other words which might indicate the trend of thought uppermost in the minds of most Canadians, following years of conflict in which the country suffered considerably, also appeared—"Mortem virtus, communem, famam historia." Translated they mean "Valor gave them a common death, history a common fame, and posterity a common memorial."

* * *

Imagining the French and British folk of Canada being seriously eager to live in harmony and exemplifying the desire by such a sensible way of proclaiming it, one wonders what has been responsible for the trends now apparent in some sections of this country, trends which would appear to have developed in recent years. For as I remember it when attending school in Nova Scotia, boys and girls of those days, no matter what their ancestry, sang "The Maple Leaf Forever" every school day and never seemed annoyed because the reference to the flag of the Dominion omitted mention of the fleur de lis.

Now for some time apparently a section of the populace has not been satisfied with the progress Canada is making beneath the flag which has served the land so well since the day Wolfe and Montcalm gave all they had to give and appeared to have welded a link of unity through the erection of a single memorial to two great figures in the story of the Canadian people. Maybe the flag which its advocates have in mind and which is slated for debate in the coming session at Ottawa will lead the country, if adopted, to far heights; but if its adoption presages in any way the culmination of rumors having to do with the severance of the British connection, which some folk apparently desire, it might prove a terrible mistake.

It is not comforting news to be told by a retired minister of the Gospel that in certain eastern townships where he labored at one time, and into which there had been a continuous infiltration from Quebec, what the newcomers wanted in the future was a French-Canadian Republic of Canada.

Clamoring for a new flag and dropping anything suggestive of a connection with Britain proclaims a petty sense of the fitness of things, considering that had it not been for Britain this land could have been anything else but Canadian. We can only imagine what might have been if for two years of each world war Britain hadn't taken the punishment she did, saving the free world while the U.S. was arming. Let not Canadians be ungrateful. As a leading member of a great Commonwealth Canada can achieve greater glory than it can ever hope to do as a republic or in any other direction for that matter; and at the same time show her gratitude for all the sacrifices Britain had made in Canada's behalf by remaining on her side.

Reports from Ottawa

THE stage is quietly being set for a major cabinet shakeup. It likely won't occur until after the next session of Parliament — perhaps June of next year. But there are clear forewarnings that it's on its way.

At Prime Minister St. Laurent's request, Finance Minister Abbott agreed to keep his job through the coming session. Parliament likely will finish in late May or early June. Chief Justice Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada will attain retirement age of 75 on June 22, and a fitting post for a retiring finance minister will become available.

Abbott recently repeated his election campaign statement that "before long" Resources Minister Lesage will be the country's first French-Canadian finance minister.

The recent shift of former Resources Minister Winters to the department of public works facilitates Lesage's succession of Abbott, for Winters is the first English-Canadian works minister.

* * *

Justice Minister Garson wants to take over the finance portfolio from Abbott, but it's reported that neither the business world nor most of the cabinet looks with favor on his succession.

Reliable sources predict that Garson, unable to get the finance post, will settle for the chief justiceship of Manitoba.

The chairmanship of the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, the government commission which will build and operate the project of that name, is reportedly being kept on ice for Transport Minister Chevrier. The objections of the engineering fraternity will be overcome by the appointment of an engineer as co-chairman to work with Chevrier during seaway construction.

* * *

Barring some unforeseen occurrence like illness, there's not the slightest suspician that the big shift will involve either the prime minister or Trade Minister Howe.

If Lesage goes to finance, a new resources minister will have to be named — possibly State Secretary Pickersgill, who will need a promotion to increase his prestige if he is to contend for the Liberal leadership when the PM retires.

Immigration Minister Harris is a likely choice for justice. Fisheries Minister Sinclair would be a possible choice for revenue, with perhaps Watson MacNaught, his parliamentary assistant, becoming minister.

With McCann's departure to the Senate, George McIlraith (Lib., Ottawa West) may finally make the first team, perhaps as secretary of state or immigration minister. He recently quit the parliamentary assistantship in trade, which he'd held for eight years, and declined the PM's offer of the deputy speakership of the Commons.

By all the rules, another English-Canadian Catholic should enter the cabinet to replace McCann, and another Manitoban to replace Garson. The likeliest Catholic choice is the parliametary assistant for defense production, John Dickey of Halifax. W. G. "Gib" Weir, longtime Liberal whip and MP for Portage-Neepawa, is a likely choice to represent Manitoba—with duties which, St. Laurent has indicated, would make Weir a sort of assistant prime minister.

A Different Story

(From the Peterborough Examiner)

THE overwhelming problem is financial. The revenue resources allocated to the municipalities are not based on the economic and social objectives of the present, but on the conditions of a century ago.

The municipalities are now expected by the central provincial government, and by the citizens of the community, to provide all sorts of new services — from pavement to baby clinics and traffic squads—and yet have the taxing resources of buggy and corduroy road days, namely the property tax.

In the two other spheres of government in Canada, the provincial and federal, taxation methods and revenues have kept abreast of the times, if not ahead of them.

The very large increase in the "gross national product" (the market value of all goods and services, including wages, profits, farm and manufacturing income) has been accompanied by corresponding increases in provincial and federal tax revenues.

The story for the municipalities is different; their problems have multiplied, so have their responsibilities, but their tax revenues have not kept up.

Last week we hastened to renew our membership in a club founded some years ago by Lord Stanley of Atherley. We were reminded of it by Atticus, writing in the Sunday Times, London. It is the sort of club we can heartily endorse; there are no fees of any kind, no meetings, and only one rule—that when a member has any correspondence with an agency or department of government, he must end each letter with the gentle reminder, "You are my dear sir, my humble and obedient servant."

Across the Years

By GERALD S. REES

TODAY is Poppy Day once again, and millions of Vetcraft poppies flaunt crimson flame across our broad Dominion. They are made by ex-servicemen whose marching days are over but who carry on with cheery courage. We commend them to the loving care of Canada till traveling days are done.

Writing these lines, there comes to me a memory of a postwar pil-dusk was deepening over the landscape of what was once known as the Old Salient, hard by the village of St. Julien—Canada's Memorial to her fallen sons: mellowed by the patina of Time, the squared monolith of grey granite shaped into helmeted head and shoulders of a Canadian soldier, head bowed and hands folded over rifle reversed. Its stark grandeur dominates the history-drenched countryside. Casting long shadows at set of sun, the brooding warrior keeps timeless guard beneath a wide arching sky through the long night watches over a treasured terrain where many hundreds of white headstones mutely stand in serried rows. It is a focal point on a spiritual map on which is recorded the soul-striving of our people in the unending fight for freedom.

The keeping of any anniversary corresponds to some deep-felt want in humankind, and our Stones of Remembrance offer an anchor for the evocation of memories. For the ever-diminishing Old Guard and the more stalwart ranks of the New, such signalize a lordly comradeship they alone can comprehend.

Four days hence, the traditional Silence, Last Post and Reveille in solemn ritual will revive far-gone yesterdays. Navy men may recall salt-spray and shellburst on any of the Seven Seas. The old soldier will remember "Wipers" and the Menin Road, Arras or Amiens, the Last One Hundred Days; the younger veteran, a June morn on Normandy beachhead and Sicilian vineyard, the Rhine crossings, or flak-flailed skies over the Reich.

Singing their silly, sentimental songs and bawdy sagas, they lived on the razor edge of danger, fought and buried their dead—journey's end for many a mother's son in flame of battle far from the seas of home. To the end of life, we shall see faces in the fire, faces that never grow old, but remain forever lit with hope and courage, as when in the glow-beauty of the sunset, these gentlemen-at-arms, our comrades, went swinging down the roads of war and faded away in the deepening twilight.

It is therefore seemly to commemorate the observance of Poppy Day in grateful remembrance of kith and kin who helped to hold the pass for civilization and Christianity in that older war, and of the unreturning brave in a later generation found through fiery trial to be equally worthy of our high heritage.

This is the meaning of the scarlet emblem, bought at your own price, that you wear on Poppy Day.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

GOOD-BYE now to flies. We won't see any more of them of any account for months, unless that usual one turns up from nowhere around Christmas Day and bats clumsily around the ceiling like a sleeper waked.

In their millions and billions, the flies vanish with the frost, because the larvae are killed or chilled in the breeding places, the garbage dumps, the stables, and refuse where they come from. It takes a tremendous lot of breeding to keep up the fly population. In other words, it takes a lot of dirt. The suddenness with which the adult generation of flies vanishes in a day or two of chill suggests how briefly they live as adults, and how enormous must be the fresh supply, day after day, from the dirt that is still allowed to exist around our premises not far away.

Frank E. Lutz, in his basic book on insects, says that of 23,087 flies caught on fly paper set in dining rooms in New York City, 22,808 were the common familiar house fly.

He declines to call it the house fly; He names it the disease-carrying fly.

Having studied its life history with all the assets of modern science, he declares that it is impossible for the house fly to breed except in filth. The young cannot hatch and mature, except in filth. To suppose, as we do, that with the immense growth of public health and sanitation, house flies must have improved themselves accordingly, and discovered some nice, tidy way of breeding is sheer nonsense. The existence of flies is evidence, as sure as death and taxes, of the presence of some unmentionable filth not far away.

The house fly and the occasional blue-bottle or blow fly are by no means the only visitors through our doors and window. There is a noticeably small house fly seen in spring, and towards the end of the season the stable fly, the one that bites, is often mistaken for a house fly gone wild. Every one of these flies is a sticky-footed leper in our homes; and the stable fly, the one that bites, stands high on the list of suspects in polio.

Kindness to Masses Irks Hungarian Reds

VIENNA (AP)—Major differences between Stalinist Communists and those approving the "new look" of Premier Georgi Malenkov appear to have split the Communist party and government of satellite Hungary.

The Hungarian regime openly admitted Friday that its new course of better and more consumer goods—a course modeled on the Malenkov design—has encountered resistance in key spots within the party.

The resistance, it was indicated, is from old, hard-policy Communists who apparently do not approve the "be nice to the masses" line.

That line was announced in Hungary in July, soon after Moscow set the example. It was accompanied by a shake-up in the government in which Matyas Rakosi, Stalin's trusted servant in Hungary, was dropped as premier.

Rakosi was replaced by Imre Nagy, a former farmer who understand that too-rapid collectivization of farms had brought hunger to the nation and chaos to its agriculture.

Nagy promptly announced a slowdown in collectivization. He decreed that expansion of heavy industry was to be delayed to provide more creature comforts for the masses.

The central committee of the party, Budapest newspapers disclosed Friday, met on October 31 to discuss the progress made in the new course and found it unsatisfactory.

The committee said the new policy had been opposed by party functionaries "devoted to old and accustomed things." It demanded an immediate end to the ideological bickering.

It said there had been strong resistance against the new course in the state planning office, in the ministry of heavy industry, the ministry of smelting and machinery and even within the planning and financial departments of the party.

The party resolution said that, despite the opposition, the new course was to be continued. The resolution announced there would be a new party election in January.

CNR Option On Property Turned Down

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Saturday tentatively rejected a request by Canadian National Railways for a 45-day option on city-owned property adjoining Hotel Vancouver and decided to press for a "definite commitment."

Aldermen voted to ask the CNR for a firm price offer and a commitment that construction will go ahead on enlarging the present hotel within a specified time.

They also declared the suggested price of $285,000 was far below the present market value of the property, previously set aside as the site for a new central library.

CNR president Donald Gordon, in requesting the option last week, said he would discuss the purchase at the next meeting of the railway board of directors about the end of November.

In a statement earlier this week, Mr. Gordon said the option did not carry any commitment, "expressed or implied," regarding immediate extension of Hotel Vancouver.

The hotel is operated by the CNR and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Strike Forces Airline Cuts

SEATTLE (AP) — Northwest Airlines cut its air freight service to Alaska to a trickle Friday because of a system-wide strike of 1,500 white collar workers, but other lines said the territory would not suffer.

Northwest said the strike had forced it to suspend temporarily five all-cargo flights a week to Anchorage. The action followed suspension of domestic freight service by NWA Thursday night.

Northwest and Pacific Northern Airlines are the two principal air carriers to Anchorage. Between them they transport an average of 15 tons of cargo there a week, much of it perishable goods.

CHELASSE, Mass. (AP) — A third consecutive set of twins were born Wednesday to Mrs. Ralph S. Trufant Jr., about 30. Mrs. Trufant and the twin girls were reported in good condition. Sanctuary Wanted, Not Citizenship

WINNIPEG (CP) — Michael Krycun wants sanctuary in Canada but not Canadian citizenship. If Canada does not guarantee him political asylum he will "go elsewhere."

"If they say 'no,' to my request, they mean they do not want me," the 42-year-old former Polish consul in Winnipeg said Friday in an interview.

But Mr. Krycun, in the second day of a hunger strike to clear a diplomatic point of order, said he believes going elsewhere—he didn't specify where—won't be necessary.

"There hasn't been a case to date in any of the free countries where safety has not been assured for a diplomatic refugee," he said. "I don't think Canada would be the first to refuse such a request."

The department of citizenship and immigration says he can get a six-month permit to remain in Canada any time he wants to drop into its Winnipeg office. The six-month permit would pave the way for permanent residence. But Mr. Krycun wants the external affairs department to act in his case, granting guarantees of political asylum.

Mr. Krycun says he hopes "one day soon" to resume diplomatic duties for a free Poland. "I will not accept Canadian immigration papers because I want to keep my Polish citizenship."

Firm Selects New Site in Esquimalt

BY HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

One city's loss is another municipality's gain. Allan Pendray of British-America Paint Co. tells me his firm has canceled its plans to build a new warehouse adjacent to the Bapco plant in the Victoria Inner Harbor.

"All we are waiting for is rezoning permission," said Mr. Pendray.

The decision not to build on the waterfront according to Mr. Pendray is due to the many controls and conditions on which city of Victoria officials insisted.

"The thing became entirely uneconomical," said Mr. Pendray. "So we have selected an Esquimalt sit for our new warehouse."

COMMISSIONER APPROVED

Suggestion that an industrial commissioner should be ap- ... to the Greater Victoria area was endorsed by the director of Victoria Chamber of Commerce Friday.

The establishment of an industrial commissioner on a full time basis, and for a period of at least two years was part of an Industrial Development of Victoria report placed before the board by Gordon Roper, chairman of the Industrial Bureau of the Chamber.

In moving the adoption of the report, Mr. Roper said that there was a feeling locally that industries could look after themselves. This, he felt, was wrong, and that greater attention should be paid to their needs.

NO LAGGARDS WANTED

Directors of Chamber of Commerce who do not, or cannot, attend the monthly meetings regularly are going to be advised that they should withdraw unless they can mend their ways.

Some of the elected members, it was pointed out Friday by President George H. Wheaton, attend very irregularly.

He suggested that these should be asked to step down in favor of others who would be able to give more time to chamber affairs.

The faithful directors who attended Friday's meeting agreed that a letter to this effect should be sent out to all directors.

A geophysical survey of the Cowichan Copper Company property near Honeymoon Bay on Lake Cowichan has changed the company's objectives, according to Oswood MacDonald, president.

Mr. MacDonald told shareholders at the annual meeting in Vancouver that instead of making the shipping of existing high-grade ore a primary consideration, first importance would be placed on diamond drilling to prove up a large mill tonnage.

The president said that the survey had given favorable indications for a large tonnage copper mine in areas yet to be explored.

The decision to short-hole diamond drill until a complete picture is outlined was taken on the advice of Dr. A. C. Skerl, company's consulting geologist.

Gas Field Extension Found Near B.C. Border

CALGARY (CP)—Discovery of fresh supplies of natural gas in the Pouce Coupe sector of the Peace River country near the B.C. border was reported here Friday.

Oil sources said the gas was found in three horizons at two exploratory drillers and that a further well has been established as a two-mile gas extension.

The discoveries are owned by the team of Canadian Northern Oil and Gas Limited wholly-owned subsidiary of Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd., Pacific Petroleums Limited, Canadian Atlantic Oil Company Limited and Antone Petroleums Limited.

The gas extension to the east is located in a section that is held 50 per cent each by Pacific Petroleums and Royalite Oil Company Limited.

The site, near the Alberta-British Columbia boundary, is 15 miles east of Dawson Creek, B.C., and 12 miles south of the Pouce Coupe gas field.

Conflict Denied By CPA Chief

VANCOUVER (CP) — Grant McConachie, president of Canadian Pacific Airlines, says his company's application for a countrywide aerial freight service would give Canada a service Trans-Canada Airlines has not attempted to give.

"Our application does not conflict in any important degree with the interest of TCA," said Mr. McConachie commenting on a speech here Wednesday by TCA President Gordon McGregor.

Mr. McGregor, whose company is opposing the application now under consideration by the air transport board, said CPA competition might put the government-owned TCA operations into the red. He said Canada's population was not large enough to support two transcontinental services. He also said CPA would soon seek passenger-carrying rights if the application was granted.

Mr. McConachie said his company did not propose to enter into a public controversy with TCA over the application, now under review by the federal cabinet after a three-week hearing before the air transport board.

"We have not applied for the right to handle trans-Canada passengers, knowing well the government's attitude toward TCA monopoly in this respect," he added.

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A man who was stuck to a patch of tar for several hours in near-freezing temperatures was reported in fair condition Friday. Canadian Mining Men Oppose Higher U.S. Metal Tariffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Canadian Metal Mining Association opposed increased tariffs on lead and zinc sought by American producers.

V. C. Wansbrough, vice president and managing director of the association, told the U.S. tariff commission, it could not approve higher duties "without undermining" the International Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

He contended the present distressed condition of the U.S. lead and zinc industry "is not due to any tariff concessions."

He said the situation applies throughout the world and is caused by over-supply created by uneconomic production "fostered by the actions of various governments by economic assistance, stock-piling and similar acts of policy."

In Canada, Wansbrough said, declining lead and zinc prices have forced 15 producers to close their mines, and this decline plus tariff increases might discourage Canadian production of vital supplies for U.S. markets.

In the World Of Religion

BY F. GWYNNE LIGHTBOURN

It is reported from Geneva that officials of the World Council of Churches are exploring the possibility of inviting Roman Catholic observers to attend the second assembly of the council, to be held at Evanston, Illinois, next August. There were none at the first assembly at Amsterdam in 1948, but there were at the world conference on faith and order at Lund, Sweden, last year.

Dom Raphael Walzer, former archabbot of Beuron monastery in East Germany, who was an implacable opponent of Nazism, has established a Benedictine monastery in an old stable at Tlemcen in Algeria. He began with two other monks, whose number has increased to 10. The abbot has been in Canada recently, and plans to take a number of Canadian novices with him on his return. His aim is to help restore North Africa to Christianity.

Assemblies of God churches in Italy are being taxed out of existence, according to Giacomo Rosapepe, a Rome attorney, who spoke in London, England, at the national convention of this Pentecostal body. This sect is not recognized by the Italian government, and hence is not exempt from taxation as other churches are. Mr. Rosapepe claimed that one church in Rome had been assessed property taxes of over $7,500 a year.

The Rev. Clifford F. Grant, DD, principal of Union Theological Seminary, Indore, India, who died last month in London, England, at the age of 52, was one of the first missionaries appointed by the United Church of Canada after the union of 1925. Before turning to college work he had served among the Bhils in the Banswara district, and had a part in the mass conversions there.

The European Evangelical Alliance has sent a letter to the minister of justice in Czechoslovakia, protesting the imprisonment of four Baptist leaders in that country, whose offenses were "correspondence with their spiritual brethren in other countries" and "receiving humanitarian relief from abroad."

The 1948 census of the Philippines records the following approximate religious divisions of population: Roman Catholic, nearly 16,000,000; Philippine Independent Church, almost 1,500,000; Mohammedan, more than 750,000; Protestant, a little better than 500,000; and pagan, some 350,000. Other groups, none over 50,000, total some 150,000.

Dr. Fritz Kunkel who came to Canada to conduct a seminar at Five Oaks, near Brantford, Ont., during the past summer, is a living example of the truth that a man's second choice of life-work may be the thing for which he has the greatest capacity.

A surgeon in the German army he lost an arm in 1917, and turned to psychology, a field in which he has joined the few at the top of the ladder. He has been described in the United Church Observer as "a Christian psychologist. Not merely a psychologist who happens to be a Christian, but one who brings to the study of the mind an attitude shaped by Christian belief and Christian love."

The Rev. Edward H. Johnson, who has been appointed secretary of the Presbyterian Board of Missions in succession to the present moderator, Dr. W. A. Cameron, is a mathematician and physicist turned parson.

After securing an honor BSc. from McGill, he studied in Edinburgh and Berlin. His record to date includes five years in Manchuria and six as secretary of the Student Volunteer Movement in North America, the latter work giving him contacts with thousands of university students all over this continent.

Many Americans (which in this instance might even include Canadians) cannot distinguish between social liberty and license, according to the Rev. E. W. Lefever, an official of the National Council of Churches of Christ in the U.S., who says that "license is liberty without responsibility" and that "freedom, from the Christian point of view, means nothing unless it is expressed in a context of responsibility."

Vic High's Totems In Impressive Win Over Alberni, 74-48

BY IAN GLENDAY

"This could be the year," commented a joyous fan filing out of the Victoria High School gym Friday night after watching the Totems in action against Alberni High School.

And this statement probably best sums up the general feeling of almost everyone in the packed house who saw the Totems run roughshod over their perennial rivals, 74-48, to inflict the worst defeat the up-Island squad has suffered since the two teams started battling for Island supremacy three seasons ago.

Twice the Totems have met Alberni for the Island high school championship, and each time Victoria High has gone down to defeat by a narrow margin. But it was a different story Friday night in the first meeting of the clubs this season as Porky Andrews' charges broke the mastery of Alberni and gained sweet revenge.

PLAYERS MISSED

Alberni missed such players as Claude Schick, Ken Mosdell and Dave Williamson and were but a shell of the team which has advanced to the semi-finals of the B.C. high school tournament in the past two years.

On the other hand, Totems had only two holdovers—lanky bucketman Ed Pederson and scrappy Chummy Crabbe—but the team played well as a unit, which can best be gleaned from the score sheet with every player picking up at least three points.

Hustling from the start, the Totems built up an 18-7 lead at the end of the first quarter and walked off the floor at the half on the long end of a 35-19 score. They hit their best scoring stride in the third quarter, pouring 27 points through the hoop while only in the final session could the visitors outscore the winners.

PEDERSON GETS 15

Pederson, Crabbe, and Tom English and Ed Kowalyk, two players up from junior ranks, all caught the eye. The lanky centre pushed up 15 points and was invaluable through his ability to control the backboards; Crabbe showed good anticipation through his interception of passes and ball-hawking ability; English matched Pederson's total, and Kowalyk scored six points on free shots.

Gerry Knowles was a one-man show for the losers, potting 24 points, while lanky centre Dave Price added 13. However, Alberni had a completely new team on the floor from last season and as the Island champions don't get under way until February, the defending champions will probably make things tough with a few more games under their belts.

In the opener, Alberni juniors overcame a 37-35 deficit in the fourth quarter to pin a 54-50 defeat on Victoria High juniors in a well-played contest. Andrews and Panton sparked the winners with 12 and 10 points respectively, while Waldo Skillings Jr. topped all scorers with 17 points.

Lineups follow:

Alberni juniors—Bailey 9, Vikstrom 7, Andrews 12, Harcus 9, Panton 10, Pennington 2, Wright 5, Kimuto, Pearce, Thomson, Taylor. Total—54.

Vic. High juniors—Skillings 17, Buerang 6, Chiko 13, Lore 8, Woolridge, Rossington 3, Large, Eng 1, Taylor 2, Salsbury. Total—50.

Time-Ed Pederson 15, C. Crabbe 13, K McCulloch 6, D. Perry 3, T. English 13, P. Simpton 4, E. Kowalyk 6, R. Rutherford 8, G. Fletcher 4. Total—74.

Alberni—J. Price 13, B. Ward 2, R. Gallick 3, J. Redford 3, T. Watts 2, G. Knowles 24, R. Gallinux 1, B. McShane 1, McLean, J. Schick 4. Total—48.

Champion Refuses To Weigh In

MONTREAL (CP) — Jimmy Carter, world lightweight champion who will defend his title here November 11 against Montreal's Armand Savoie, refused Friday to go through with a preliminary weighing-in. Savoie weighed himself at 136.

Bothe fighters underwent a preliminary medical examination and were pronounced physically fit.

GOOD CROWD

Meanwhile, promoter Raoul Godbout said indications now are that there will be a crowd of between 12,000 and 15,000 for the fight in Montreal Forum.

Seating capacity for fights at the Forum is 15,000, said Godbout, and with standees the capacity is around 17,500.

Carter is guaranteed $25,000 for the fight; Savoie gets a 12½ per cent cut of the gate. Estimated gate is $70,000. The fight time is 10 p.m. EST, and there will be neither television nor radio broadcast.

Second of two daily shows will be held today, starting at 10 a.m.

Canucks Beat Royals; Quakers Lose Again

There's no stopping the Vancouver Canucks, it seems. Stepping along at a tremendous pace the Western Hockey League leaders won their 11th game in 14 starts—of which they have tied two—Friday night as they trimmed New Westminster Royals, 8-2, at Vancouver.

Victory restored the Canucks' five-point lead over the second-place Calgary Stampeders and left the Royals only two points ahead of the fourth-place Victoria Cougars, who play them tonight at New Westminster.

In last night's other game, Edmonton Flyers climbed out of the league cellar to share fifth spot with Seattle Bombers by downing the luckless Saskatoon Quakers, 5-2, before 4,000 Edmonton fans.

BIG OFFENSIVE

Canucks, who managed to win two and tie one of their previous three games on a total goal production of four, burst out with their biggest offensive show of the season. They wound up with five of the seven third-period goals to end New Westminster's unbeaten streak at five games.

Rookie Dale Sweaney, who was at the Saskatoon training camp, showed the way with three goals. Fred Brown potted two and singletons went to Carl Kaiser, Larry Popein and Bill Wylie. Strangely, Andy Bathgate, the league's goal-scoring leader, didn't manage to beat goalie Lucien Dechene but did pick up one assist. Royals got the last two goals of the game through Gordie Fashoway and Pete Brilliant.

Allan Stanley, erstwhile captain of the New York Rangers, made his first appearance in the WHL on the Vancouver defense and was enough of a help to indicate he meant what he said when he proclaimed he'd be back in the NHL in a matter of weeks.

RAYNER COOLISH

At Edmonton, the Flyers got the benefit of a lack-lustre job by Saskatoon goalie Chuck Rayner as the Quakers went through their 11th straight game without victory a Lter starting out with three wins and a tie in the first four games. The league record is 16 games without victory, set by Canucks in the 1951-52 season.

Flyers' new line of Enio Sclisizzi and Don Poile pivoted by coach Bud Poile led the attack for the winners. Sclisizzi scored twice and passed for one goal, Bud Poile had a goal and two assists and Don Poile got in on one goal.

It was a bruising game in which the Flyers took a 5-0 lead in the first two periods and then coasted in with the Quakers managing all the third-period scoring to avert a blanking. They have only scored seven goals in their last six games and it would seem that rumored changes are in the offing.

Grid Players Nominated For Awards

By Canadian Press

Tackle Vince Mazza of Hamilton Tiger-Cats is again in the running for the Jeff Russell Memorial Trophy, which is awarded annually to the player in the Big Four Football League judged the most valuable to his team and the most gentlemanly.

Mazza, who won the award last year, was one of four players nominated by the Ti-Cats' management for the two individual awards made annually by the league. Halfback Lou Kusserow was also chosen as a candidate for the trophy while Art Darch and Bob Dawson were nominated for the rookie-of-the-year award.

Ottawa Rough Riders, who have no players eligible for the rookie honor, nominated halfbacks Bob Cunningham and Gene (Choo-Choo) Roberts for the Russell trophy. Montreal Alouettes also named no rookies but chose tackle Tex Coulter and centre Tom Hugo as their candidates for the main award.

Division Winners

Miss M. McKenzie-Grieve carded an 89-13—76 at Uplands Golf Club Friday to take top honors in silver division competition of the women's monthly medal play. A score of 100-22—78 earned Mrs. T. B. Gibson first place in the bronze division.

Clamor at Fever Pitch To Bring Majors West

BY ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — The rising clamor over a plan to bring major league baseball to the United States West Coast—and which incidentally would take in two Canadian cities—has reached a fever pitch. Club owners are wondering just how they will approach the problem at the minor league meeting at the end of the month and the major league sessions in December.

Unfill International League president Frank Shaughnessy recently presented his plan for two 12-team leagues, the moguls were in a dither. They wanted to expand, but they didn't know just how to do it.

Shag's plan would take in at least a couple of West Coast cities. The first four finishers in each section would play off to meet in the world series.

This, of course, is what most of the minors have been doing since 1932 when Shaughnessy introduced his "Shaughnessy playoffs." It kept interest alive when one team ran away with the pennant, because in the playoffs any of the first four clubs could win.

"It would give the majors a sensible program for expansion," said Shaughnessy, "instead of the present uncertain, panicky grabbing of minor league territory. At the same time it would stabilize the minor leagues."

When and if the leagues are expanded, four cities seem virtually certain of being included—Los Angeles, San Francisco, Montreal and Toronto.

Cougars Move to Fourth Spot With Unbeaten String of Seven

Collie Takes Honors

A Victoria-owned collie, Ch. Vanatoria Viscount, captured best-in-show honors at Esquimalt Athletic Hall Friday night in the first of two daily dog shows in the 20th annual Vancouver Island Dog Fanciers' Association all-breed shows.

Entered by Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Webb, Ch. Vanatoria Viscount was named winner of the working-dog class before being picked by judge A. W. Forbes, Tacoma, as best in show.

An English cocker spaniel, William of Abbottsford, owned by James and Mrs. Roberts, Abbottsford, took first place in the sporting-dog class. The smooth Dachshund, Arbutus June Bug, topped the sporting-hounds class.

The second show will be held at the Fraser Street Hall today with Robert Waters, Haney, B.C., handling the judging.

Other Friday winners follow:

Terriers: West highland white terrier, Am. Ch. Scotchbloom Bonus Major, owned by Scotchbloom Kennel, Olympia, Wash.

Toys: Miniature pinscher, Am. Ch. Little Red Fawn of Mardan, owned by Dorothy E. Carson.

VASC's Gala To Be Held Next Friday

Young swimmers from Lampson Street School will be defending the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club Trophy, won by their school last year, when the VASC stages the annual elementary schools swimming gala at the Crystal Garden next Friday.

Starting at 7.15, the gala will have races divided into three divisions for boys and girls—under 12 years of age, under 14 and 14 and over. Novelty competitions will be held for swimmers not competing in championship races.

HIGH AGGREGATE

The VASC Trophy will be won by the school team compiling the highest aggregate score among schools housing grades one to eight. School teams from grades one to six will be competing for the Times Trophy, won last year by Sir James Douglas School.

The annual junior high school swimming championships are scheduled to be held on April 13 of next year.

DeGirolamo Sets Pair of Records

Andy DeGirolamo established a season's league and alley single-game fivepin record this week when he racked up a 406 game while bowling for Halah Hakah in the Gibson Bowladrome's Commercial Fivepin League.

Starting off with seven strikes, DeGirolamo spared the eighth frame, racked up a strike in the ninth and missed striking out by a single pin. He put together first and third-game scores of 221 and 208 for a total of 835 which helped his team move to within two points of first-place Victoria Laundry.

BY JIM TANG

Goalie Ralph Almas, whose improved play has probably been the biggest single reason for the about-face made by Victoria Cougars, came up with his first shutout of the season last night at Memorial Arena.

Forced to protect a 1-0 lead until the last minute of the game, Almas was always safe and sometimes very good as the Cougars handed the Seattle Bombers a 3-0 setback to move past Muzz Patrick's club into fourth place in the Western Hockey League standings and extend their unbeaten string through seven games.

Almas has allowed only 12 goals in the streak and only two in the last three games and is playing with an assurance and steadiness which leaves the Cougars with no worries about his position.

CLEARING WEAK

A crowd of 4,516 sat in on a game which, while it didn't produce too much in the way of good passing, was always interesting. There was weak clearing at times in both ends and Almas and Seattle's Marcel Pelletier had to move fast more than once to keep the score down. The Cougars deserved the victory, but the result was in doubt until the 19-minute mark of the third period when Victoria scored in an open net. They added a second goal while Pelletier was off for a sixth attacker 33 seconds later in a burst of action which sent fans home happy.

And also on the happy side was the fact that Bob Manson, who was obtained in a trade for Fiori Goegan, made the deal look good with two goals, including the all-important first goal. It was the seventh straight game in which the Cougars have opened the scoring.

Manson's first goal came off a shot by Stan Maxwell, another ex-Seattle player. The Cougars were trying to cash in on a penalty to Bill Davidson for tripping Maxwell, with little success, when they got two big breaks. Seattle appeared to have the play stopped but the puck flopped right for Ed Dorohoy and he kept the play inside the Seattle blue line and eventually passed back to Maxwell at the point. The big winger fired a shot goalward which appeared to deflect past Pelletier, but Manson got his stick on it to receive credit.

FREQUENT CLOSE CALLS

That was all the scoring until the last minute, but there were dozens of close calls with Manson and Bill Sinnett hitting posts for the Cougars and Lloyd Ailsby connecting with the ironwork at 18 minutes of the first period when his hard shot seemed to get by Almas.

Cougars played it close to the vest in the last period and were helped out by two Seattle penalties and continued erratic shooting by the Bombers, who showed little in the way of cohesion on the attack.

It was all Victoria when Pelletier was taken out for a sixth attacker for a face-off in the Victoria zone at 17.30. Walter Clune, who played a fine game on the Cougar defense, got the puck to Dorohoy, who passed it out to the centre zone. Sam Bettio, showing a real burst of speed, tore across from the left wing to pick it up and moved right to the edge of the crease before slipping the disc into the yawning net.

MANSON ROBBED

Pelletier came back for the face-off and was taken off again immediately the play moved into the Victoria end. But the Cougars broke out again and Manson was robbed of a goal when Joe Bell got back in time to sweep a slowly-sliding puck right off the goal line. However, Dorohoy, who figured in all three goals, got the rubber back to Manson and the winger battled it home.

The game produced little rough play but Kilburn and Pelletier, the central figures in the fight which featured the club's last game here, feuded all night. Kilburn cross-checked the Seattle goalie when he came out of his nets in the second period and several of the Bombers went for him at once. The Cougars piled in, too, and the only thing which could be seen clearly in the milling mass of players was a terrific left uppercut by Clune which, fortunately, missed everyone. Guyle Fielder came the closest to being hit.

Kilburn spilled Pelletier again in the third period and the game was held up for 11 minutes while repairs were made. Pelletier received a shoulder injury and a separation is feared.

Victoria coach Billy Reay made only one change in the line-up which has been doing so well, inserting Doug Anderson in his spot between Colin Kilburn and Andy Hebenton. Reay came out only once, when the Cougars staved off a penalty to Kilburn for his joust with Pelletier. Hebenton, Lavitt and Clune were the other three penalty killers and the quartet operated so well that the Bombers never got a shot on goal.

Pheasants On Wane

BY DOUG PEDEN

Tomorrow starts the final two weeks of the 1953 pheasant season, which hasn't been a good one by any means.

As a matter of fact, Vancouver Island hunters may never again see a really good one.

The biggest single enemy for the ringnecks is, of course, the hunting fraternity. Each passing year is bringing an increase in the Island's population and a corresponding increase in the hunting ranks, which results in a heavier concentration of guns in the field.

The field for pheasant hunting is dwindling, too, as more and more people move to rural areas. Many of the larger farms have been broken up into small holdings and there is not sufficient suitable territory left that can be developed into farms to compensate for the losses.

Saanich is lost to hunters. Central Saanich appears to be next in line, and North Saanich eventually is certain to prohibit shooting. Other sections will, in time, follow the Saanich example.

A tendency of farmers to switch from grain to other crops and pasture in recent years and to strip their land of brush patches has also worked against the Chinese immigrant, which perfers to feed on grain and needs cover near his feeding grounds.

The pheasant is too smart to disappear, even in heavily hunted sections. And he's going to prosper in no-shooting areas as long as sufficient cover remains.

However, it appears that the cards are too heavily stacked against the ringnecks to allow a return to near their former numbers and we are going to have to reconcile ourselves to the inevitable.

Hen pheasants become legal targets today, but only in North Saanich and Central Saanich. Hunters in those areas are permitted to include one hen per day in their pheasant bag-limit until the season closes on November 22. All pheasants must be tagged when taken into possession.

That frosty tang in the air these nights may mean the start of bigger fuel bills, but it also heralds the arrival of ducks from further north. In the Duncan area earlier this week, I saw small flights of mallards and widgeon where none were observed the previous week, which could be a good sign.

Actually there have been fair numbers of ducks around but most of them have been spending the days sitting out on the salt water. An especially large concentration of ducks has congregated in front of Cowichan Bay. The first good storm should bring some excellent shooting.

Mallards, widgeon and pintails are being taken occasionally at Sooke Harbor and the number of diving ducks in the Sooke area is increasing.

Sidney Island has been steady producer since the season opened, while shooting at Cowichan and Chemainus flats has been fair at times. A few mallards are beginning to drop into stubble fields in the evenings.

Few trapshooters who attend an annual turkey shoot of the Nitinat Gun Club willingly pass up a chance to go back for the next one. This year's shoot is scheduled for Sunday, November 22, and a large group of Victoria shotgun artists is again expected to take in the event.

Two speeders will leave from Youbou at Cowichan Lake at 10.30 on the morning of the shoot. In order to assist the Nitinat club in making transportation and catering arrangements, Victorians planning to attend are requested to inform Roger Monteith at 618 Fort Street.

Suitable refreshments for the occasion will be available at the grounds.

Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace and Russell Ker were picking up ammunition Friday for their proposed goose-hunting trip to Knight Inlet . . . South Vancouver Island Rangers are planning an open turkey shoot at their Luxton property on November 29 and will stage a shoot for members the following week . . . Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association, following the seasonal lull in its activities, will hold an organization meeting shortly.

DENNY BOYD

Oak Bay Whitneys are expected to take to the air today against rugged Navy squad in Victoria Junior Canadian Football League game and holding key to aerial attack will be quarterback Denny Boyd. Whitneys must win this one to stand chance of avoiding a last-place finish while a Navy victory will give the sailors the championship. Game time is 2 p.m. at Heywood Avenue Park.

Paddy Young Easily Wins Over Giuliani

NEW YORK (UP)—Veteran Paddy Young of New York, displaying no ill effects from a five-month layoff, handily worked up a sweat Friday night as he scored a technical knockout over Sammy Giuliani of Stamford, Conn., in 2.54 of the second round of a scheduled ten rounder, at St. Nicholas Arena.

The 25-year-old Young, who weighed 161 pounds, the same as 21-year old Giuliani, ended the nationally televised bout so suddenly that the small crowd of 1,500 hardly realized he had won. Until he hammered a right hook to Giuliani's jaw, knocking the loser down for the second time in the round, Yeung actually was behind in the fight.

Golf--- Here's How

BY SAM SNEAD

Without seeing the flight of the ball and observing the player when his hands are only hip-high in the follow through, as pictured, you can tell with accuracy what happened to the ball. Now, look at the player pictured again. His left side is virtually a straight line. His weight is forward. His forward hip and shoulder pivots are virtually completed, and note this—although his hands are hip-high in the follow-through, he is still—get that—still looking at the spot where the ball was. "X" marks the spot. This player's shot with wood — I say wood, because of the width of his open stance—has traveled 240 yards straight down the fairway. If I had seen this shot, I would expect to see his ball hook faintly just at the far end of the flight, then roll, due to its overspin, for nice additional yardage. Good golf form does it. And enjoy the 19th hole celebration!

Goalie's Plight Stirs Adams

DETROIT (BUP) — Jack Adams, manager of the Detroit Red Wings, has demanded action against National Hockey League players who charge into the net on scoring attempts.

In a letter to NHL president Clarence Campbell, Adams demanded that league rules be strengthened to keep players from crashing into goalies.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard, high-scoring Montreal right wing, sent Detroit goalie Terry Sawchuk sprawling in a vain effort to score. Sawchuk was injured and needed repairs before he could continue.

It was the second injury inflicted by Richard this season. He sidelined Sawchuk for a week on October 12 when he carried right into the goal for a score.

Johnny Gaudes of St. Boniface, Man., won the Canadian bantamweight boxing title 15 years ago tonight by defeating champion Baby Yack at Toronto in 10 rounds. Argos Fight To Keep Playoff Hope; Snow Greets Western Final Today

By The Canadian Press

The 1952 Grey Cup champions, Toronto Argonauts, today must come up with a successful do-or-die effort or face the stark fact that their campaign this season has been a glorious flop.

The Argonauts travel to Ottawa to meet the Rough Riders in game they must win to remain in the running for a Big Four playoff berth.

The team with the most enviable spot in the Big Four this week-end is Hamilton Tiger-Cats. They can clinch a playoff berth with a win against Montreal Alouettes in Montreal Sunday.

PLAYOFFS START

As the Big Four teams battle down to the wire with the regular schedule due to end next week-end, the final and semi-final playoffs to decide the champions in two other leagues get under way today.

Everything is set for the best-of-five Western Interprovincial Football Union final opening at Edmonton tonight between Eskimos and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Snow was falling yesterday to complicate the big battle.

The two-game total-point Ontario Rugby Football Union semi-final between Sarnia Imperials and Toronto Balmy Beach starts at Sarnia Saturday and continues at Toronto the following day. The winner meets Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen for the ORFU title next week for the right to go west for the Grey Cup semi-final against the western champions.

The intercollegiate group, almost forgotten in the frenzied fan interest over the Big Four and WIFU games, has two contests carded. At Toronto, the runner-up Varsity Blues meet the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, top-place club that hasn't lost a game in four starts and at Hamilton, McMaster Marauders are host to Queen's Golden Gaels.

Ottawa sprang the split-T formation on the Argonauts a week ago and won 20-8 and the Scullers now plan to retaliate with it themselves.

Coach Frank Clair of Argos hoped to keep his split-T plans a secret—just as the Riders did—but it leaked out in Toronto newspapers and Clair was a trifle put out.

If Clair tries the split-T, it is likely that Royal Copeland will take over the quarterback slot from Nobby Wirkowski. But Wirkowski will call the signals when Argonauts go into their regular straight-T formation.

Vic High Distance Team Starts New Season Right

Winners of 15 consecutive races last year, Gordon Hartley's charges got away on the right foot this term when they placed seven of the first 10 runners who crossed the finish line in a two-and-a-half-mile race against teams from Oak Bay High, Victoria College and Navy.

Mike Chambers, taking the lead from the start, held off a challenge by Victoria College's Jim Moore midway through the grind and broke the tape first about 40 yards in front of teammate Jim Pickup. The Vic High runner covered the distance in 15 minutes flat.

MOORE THIRD

Moore wound up third with Brian Whittingham, a member of the city institution's team last year, ran fourth under the colors of Oak Bay High School.

Thirty runners competed in the event with 15 of them representing Victoria High, seven each from College and Nav, and Whittingham the lone Navy, and Whittingham the lone

The race, which started and finished on the Gyro cinder track, was witnessed by a good crowd and served as a tuneup for the Royal Roads four-mile championships a week today.

Khan Horses Go to Quebec

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Aga Khan has sold two outstanding European horses, Kerbab, a three-year-old filly, and Nemrod II, a four-year-old colt, to Mr. and Mrs. Vernon G. Cardy of Ste. Marguerite, Que.

Announcement of the sale, said to involve a sum in six figures, was made here Wednesday by Charles T. Spencer of West Los Angeles, who completed a similar deal with the Aga Khan for Noor for the late Charles S. Howard of California in 1948.

Club Traces History

Time passes, but all too quickly in the case of South Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club.

President Jack Leask has disclosed the club is searching for some missing links in its history. A tournament was held in 1888 but officials are not positive that it was the first sponsored by the club.

The club was operating before that year, but again officials are not too sure just how long.

Definitely pinpointed is that in 1888 the organization was in its second location, about a quarter-mile from the present grounds at "Tennis Corners," just north of Cowichan Bay on the old Island Highway.

The club sponsors annually the PNW sectional tournament, one of the few grass court lawn tennis tournaments in Canada, utilizing eight courts, one of the largest areas in Canada.

Tourist Group May Visit Alberta

Next spring the Victoria Tourist Trade group may take wings to show why it's good to follow the birds to Victoria.

A trip to Alberta is suggested by G. Conway Parrott, chairman of the group as the place to go for the 1954 goodwill tour.

"We would charter a special plane and we would signal our arrival by dropping bunches of daffodils from the air as we circled by dropping bunches of daffodils from the air as we circled over Calgary and Edmon," said Mr. Parrott.

BLIZZARD ALRIGHT, TOO

And he added feelingly, "If there's a snow blizzard in progress so much the better."

This method of showing Alberta the advantages of our early balmy spring would add point to a Victoria tour during the month of April.

Another reason for the choice of Alberta advanced by Mr. Parrott. "The prairie people are not only good tourist customers for Victoria, but they have the same type of government as we have. They are our blood brothers," he declared.

INTEREST SHOW

Mr. Parrott asked the directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce Friday if they would support such a trip. About ten of them indicated their interest.

NO. 277—NINETY-FIFTH YEAR | VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1953 | SECOND NEWS SECTION

Chamber Opposes Special Water Levy

Most of the time of the two-hour meeting of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors Friday centred around the city's proposal to make a service charge on water connections to firms having automatic fire-fighting equipment.

Leading the fight for the sprinkler users was Herbert Barnes, B.C. Forest Product sawmill manager, and for the city Cecil Wyatt, city manager.

Mr Barnes sought the endorsement by the directors of a report which opposed in principle the payment of any service charge whatsoever.

Mr. Wyatt contested that the revised charge—one sixth of the domestic rate—was fair and equitable and permitted under city by-law No. 3865 passed in 1939.

SHELVED FOR TIME

Mr. Wyatt explained the reason why the by-law had not been enforced. "The year 1939 marked the start of the war and many relatively important local matters were shelved. The time to implement the details of the by-law was the post war period," he said.

Mr. Barnes admitted his committee had been successful to the point of getting the city to reduce its proposed charge from one-half to one-sixth of the domestic rate. "But we oppose any charge in principle and we ask the directors to support our stand."

He said the charge was considerably more than that levied in Vancouver and that in many U.S. cities as in Victoria up to the present no charge for connections to sprinkler units was made.

REVENUE OF $4,000

Mr. Wyatt said the service charge would bring in about $4,000 to the city each year, and that this was part of a revenue producer required for the long-term rehabilitation of the city's water system.

Aubrey Kent asked why one section of the community should be asked to bear this cost and Ernest Arnott suggested the fairer way would be to impose a general water rate increase if that was necessary.

VEHEMENT PLEA

Most vehement plea for endorsement of the committee's report was Allan Pendray of B-A Paint Company.

"When we are assailed with annoying little charges like this we wonder if we are operating in the right place. Our freight charges to Vancouver alone cost us $16,000 a year. If we had to build again we would not choose a Victoria site," he declared.

Mr. Pendray found support from Tom Denny, who wanted to know if sprinkler connection charges were made by rival eastern Canadian manufacturing cities.

Aldermen Don Smith and Art Dowell supported City Manager Wyatt, "but on the vote they were the only ones to vote against the endorsement, which carried by a large majority.

Six-Year-Old Leads 'Tree Parade'

Ronnie Davis, six-year-old student at Burnside School, is shown above at the head of a line of his classmates as he received one of the many tree seedlings distributed among the students by Dr. C. D. Orchard, deputy minister of forests. Distribution of tree seedlings among school children of the province is sponsored by the B.C. pulp and paper industry and the department of lands and forests.

Alderman Murdoch Explains Position on Nursing Home

He said, however, that the city council is committed to support construction of Victoria Nursing Home "hospital."

The alderman commented concerning the unsolved question of property preventing a start on the $400,000 nursing home addition.

Present problem could lead to withdrawal of financial support by the federal and provincial governments and resignation of the home's board members, warned member Dr. Laura Holland at a meeting Friday).

NO SOLUTION

The meeting of the nursing home board members with city council's land committee failed to resolve into solution a proposal that the home turn over to the city 1.75 acres fronting Selkirk Water, in exchange for 2.43 acres of city-owned property next to the nursing home land.

Value of the lands involved proved to be Friday's stumbling block, board members expressing opinions their land was of higher value than the city property.

Future use of the waterfront property, if it became city-owned, also was discussed, but without satisfaction to either side.

Mrs. E. C. Warren said she favored Mayor Claude Harris' son's opinion that the land should be reserved for park purposes, but asked that the city's intention be in writing.

MAY LOSE SUPPORT

If the home does not have sufficient land the two senior governments might withdraw their financial support, cautioned Dr. Laura Holland. Each asks to contribute one-third of construction costs.

"If we approach the senior governments and they don't come through," she said, "then the only thing I think we can do is for the board to resign and let the city take over."

Alderman Murdoch told the meeting the home isn't really a home but a hospital, the responsibility of the government.

Later the alderman commented that he feels the city council is committed to assist, "in every legal way possible," development of this hospital.

NECESSITY REALIZED

As an alderman and a nursing home director Murdoch said he realized the necessity for the building of nursing homes for the care of aged and sick.

"I am not opposed to the city assisting financially in this type of development. However I am opposed to the principle that it is now necessary for municipalities to contribute financially to the development of hospitals for chronic cases or otherwise."

"This matter is clearly provincial government responsibility," he said.

BUILDING HOSPITAL

"I do not believe that municipalities should ever again get into the position where they are responsible for building and maintaining hospitals. What we are building is a hospital not a nursing home," which will include hospital equipment, he said.

School Gym Opened

Parents, school graduates and students who filled the auditorium for the ceremony agreed with Dr. J. M. Thomas, principal, that it was "a very great night" in the history of the school.

Education Minister Robert Bonner, one of several guests of honor, declared that greater attention must be given to increasing the facilities for education.

PRIDE EXPRESSED

Saanich Reeve Joseph Casey expressed pride in the staff and students of Mount View High and urged students to get as much education as possible. The reeve declared that school facilities must be kept abreast of the times. The type of school in use decades ago should not be used in modern times, he said.

Richard Reeve, chairman of the Greater Victoria School Board, thanked all who had made the addition possible local ratepayers who supported the school construction by-law, the education department, the local Parent-Teacher Association, the architect and the builders.

HONOR GUESTS

Other guests of honor included Rev. T. H. McAllister, who pronounced the invocation; John Gough, municipal inspector for Greater Victoria, Alex Turnbull, assistant municipal inspector, Mrs. T. H. Emerson president of Mount View High Parent-Teacher Association, and Norman Russell, president of the students' union.

Jury Finds Driver Blameless in Death

No blame was attached by a coroner's jury to the driver of the truck that struck and killed eight-year-old Lawrence Wayne Ruller Tuesday night. The jury at an inquest Friday brought in a verdict of accidental death.

The boy died of injuries received when he ran into a truck driven by Sohan Singh Muckay, 213 Cadillac at the intersection of Hillside and Bridge.

PLAYMATES TESTIFY

The accidental death verdict was brought in after the jurors had heard the eye-witness testimony of three playmates of the boy.

Jim Cravat, 12, John Fenswick, 10 and Adam Ustich, 14 all testified that a game of hide and seek was being played at the time, with the "base" of the game a light pole across Bridge Street from where they were standing when the truck approached.

Wayne had been the only one in the game "not caught," and was attempting to run across the street to get "home free."

He waited until the truck passed, but failed to see a long trailer being towed by the truck and ran right into it as he dashed across.

The street light had been out since Halloween night when it was broken by pranksters, making the corner quite dark, they said.

The driver told the jury he heard the child scream as he passed by and stopped his truck at once. As soon as he saw Wayne on the road, he sent the others for the parents and told them to call the police.

The inquest was held in McCall Brothers Funeral Home under Coroner E. C. Hart.

Seedlings Presented To Pupils

Seventh annual distribution of seedling trees to school children by the pulp and paper industry and the provincial department of lands and forests began Friday at Burnside School.

Seedling trees are being presented this year to all newly enrolled primary pupils attending schools in the southern areas of Vancouver Island.

PRINCIPAL PRESIDES

W. J. Orchard, principal of Burnside School, presided at a ceremony attended by Education Minister Robert Bonner, Dr. C. D. Orchard, deputy minister of forests, members of the local school board and officials of the education and lands and forests departments.

After carefully explaining the uses of wood products in the language of his young audience, Dr. Orchard presented seedling trees to some 50 children attending the school.

Purpose of the distribution is to create an awareness of the value of trees in young children in the interests of conservation.

Low Tender $579,000 On Lansdowne School

A bid of $579,000 was lowest among eight received Friday by Greater Victoria School Board for construction of Lansdowne Junior High School.

The tender was submitted by Laney Bros. and Hamilton, and was about $20,000 below the nearest other bidder, board chairman R. R. Reeve announced.

Signing of the contract is expected after formal approval of the tender is given by the provincial department of education.

Chest $30,000 Short of Goal

—AROUND TOWN—

The Community Chest is still $30,000 short of its target.

Courtney Haddock, chairman of the campaign, told directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce that the failure to achieve the figure so far was a serious blow to their hopes of being able to put over a unified charity appeal.

He said he was disappointed with the response of several firms. "It is the industrial and commercial section which has failed us," he declared.

George H. Wheaton, president, deplored the fact that the target had not been reached and appealed to all members to do their utmost. "If we fail it is going to be a serious and annoying matter to us all."

Short Route To Mainland Again Urged

Victoria Chamber of Commerce is to make a new application to the CPR for an all-year-round short-route ferry service between Saanich Peninsula and the Canadian Mainland.

President George H. Wheaton said that Victoria was losing out much of its ferry service to Nanaimo because people preferred the shorter water crossing.

FAST SERVICE

"If the CPR would run a ferry service from Swartz Bay to the Mainland it would be about as fast as from Nanaimo to Vancouver," he said.

William Elkins, chairman of the Harbor Development group, agreed that daylight passengers wanted the faster service. "A trip from Swartz Bay to the Mainland could be made in two hours."

Tom Denny agreed but was against naming Swartz Bay as the Island port of call. "We should leave that to the CPR to specify. There are several points on Saanich Peninsula which would be possible alternative points of call," he said.

CONNECTING POINT

Mr. Wheaton favored Swartz Bay because it would give a direct connecting point for Salt Spring ferry traffic.

The directors approved the application for a fast service from an unspecified point on Saanich Inlet.

Melhuish Funeral Monday

Last rites for Alfred Croyden Melhuish, 1226 Rudlin, will be held Monday at 3.30 p.m.

Mr. Melhuish died Friday in his 86th year. He came to Victoria 48 years ago when he joined the Christ Church Cathedral choir.

For 20 years he was a member of the choir, and for 21 a verger at the cathedral.

He was a well known bellringer both at Christ Church and in England.

He is survived by his wife, Alfred Wilfred, in Victoria; one daughter, Mrs. Arthur E. Cooter, in New Westminster, and one [illegible], Arthur, in Victoria.

Services will be held at Christ Church Cathedral, Dean P. R. Beattie officiating.

Burial will be at Ross Bay Cemetery.

Delay of Year Urged For Quotas on Milk

Directors of Victoria Chamber of Commerce voted Friday that the setting up of permanent milk quotas for Vancouver Island should be delayed for not less than one year.

The delay was urged in view of the fact that if imposed early next year—as is proposed in the Milk Board decontrol order—the Vancouver Island dairy farmer would not have a chance to even out his production.

INVESTIGATION MADE

Aubrey Kent, chairman of the Civic Affairs group, said that the recommendations made to the directors were the result of considerable investigations made by a sub-committee.

"If the bill goes through Vancouver Island farmers will have no chance of upping their milk quotas, which would be capable of revision only to the detriment of the Island producer," he said.

"The Island farmers want a year's delay so that they can level out their production."

The recommendations of the civic affair group committee were accepted unanimously by the directors.

Municipalities Face New Wage Demands

The city fire inside and outside staffs have notified City Manager E. C. Wyatt of intention to reopen contracts. Not disclosed yet are amounts of changes sought.

It was learned that increased wages will be proposed. Increased wages were not sought last year.

Demands of higher wages and improved working conditions also have been placed before Oak Bay council. Saanich employees also will reopen their contract in January but have not yet decided on new requests.

Also pending is contract reopening in Esquimalt municipality.

District school boards are likely to hear new wage requests from employees separate from teachers.

It is expected that most Island municipalities and school boards also will be faced with requests for improved wage scales and other conditions.

Negotiations in most areas will begin this month.

Board Assumes Control Of Liquor Advertising

The Liquor Control Board has assumed control over liquor advertising in B.C. newspapers.

Distillers and brewers have been told by letter that the new Liquor Act stipulates that all liquor advertising must be approved by the board before it is published.

The board "suggests" that all advertisements be kept to a maximum size of two columns by eight inches. No misleading claims about liquor will be permitted; advertisements can contain only statements of "undisputable fact."

The board's action apparently is designed to prevent any outbreak of flamboyant liquor advertising when B.C.'s new liquor outlets begin to function.

Candidate Opens Campaign

New Trade Policy Vital, LPP Claims

Most vital problem facing the people of B.C. today stemmed from the absence of a progressive trade policy, Mrs. Doris Blakey, Labor-Progressive candidate in the Victoria by-election, said Friday night.

SIGNS IN VICTORIA

"Why, even here in Victoria, you can see things tightening up," she told the 25-odd people who gathered in the Williams Building.

The reason things were slipping back toward the "hungry 30's," said Mrs. Blakey, was that Canada would not get out from behind the "U.S. dollar dictated trade barriers."

Markets in the Common wealth and Asia, "especially China" were wide open but Canada would not accept the sterling pound and insisted on the dollar.

"Just think what this would mean to Victoria," said Mrs. Blakey. "There's a vast market in China and Asia if we would only send trade missions over there. Local shipyards could build China coasters and that would ensure full employment here."

She said that 31,268 shipworkers were employed in 1943 but today only 5,345 were working.

National resources were being shipped to the U.S. so they could be made into finished goods there, and then shipped back to Canada.

"There is no reason why Vancouver cannot have a steel mill. Everything that is needed to operate one is here," she said.

Victoria had just experienced the worst polio epidemic in its history, Mrs. Blakey continued, but there was only one available place where people could be treated—Royal Jubilee Hospital.

The LPP would fight for a new [illegible] hospital to be built where polio patients could get the proper treatment.

The largest payroll in town was that of the civil servants. It was high time, contended the speaker, that civil servants were given full political rights—even the right to strike.

"It is high time we elected someone to bring up these problems and to raise these questions," concluded Mrs. Blakey.

She was followed by Nigel Morgan, provincial leader of the LPP, who said the by-election had given people the opportunity of expressing dissatisfaction at the government's inaction at the serious problem of trade policies.

"Only with a major change in the direction of national policy with peace and trade with all nations—can we hope for employment for all," he said.

At question time a teen-ager in the audience asked the LPP to do something about "the depraved educational policy in the province."

Coastal Ship 24 Hours Late Due to Gale

VANCOUVER — Gale-force winds off the west coast of Vancouver Island delayed the arrival here of the British Columbia Coast Steamships vessel Princess of Alberni, and as a result, the ship will sail for Gulf Island ports and Victoria today at 8.00 a.m., exactly 24 hours late.

Normally scheduled to arrive here at 7.00 p.m. Wednesday, the 538-ton Princess of Alberni did not make port until Friday morning, having waited out a "blow" in the Cape Beale coastal area.

Clear Sailing Ahead For Totem Theatre

There'll be pounding of the Totem Theatre war drums for a long time to come if Victoria continues to respond the way it has, theatre director-managers Thor Arngrim and Stuart Baker said Friday.

"After reaching a point where close down was almost inevitable, then having such wonderful response from the public when we appealed for help, we'll be forever grateful," they said.

The two men say they should have their heads above water within a month, and from then on things should sail along smoothly.

Thursday night's performance of "The Moon is Blue" was a complete sell-out and bookings for the rest of this week and the beginning of next are good, they reported, with a sell-out fairly certain for tonight.

REACH FOR A RENNIE

Finds Sumo Wrestling Exciting

BY JOEY WILSON

Anyone can tell you I am not the athletic type. The most exercise I ever encounter in a normal day is putting out my hand to turn off the alarm clock. Even that is a strain. So I was extremely surprised to find myself one day recently in a large wet field with several thousand other Japanese fans watching a Sumo wrestling match. I was even more surprised to find myself loving it.

We had wandered in there [illegible] day carnival in Nagasaki. People seemed to be drifting into the Sumo field from all parts of the Midway, which stretched along several city blocks. When we had absorbed such midway excitements as the [illegible] a very tired little elephant dancing to the strains of "When I Grow Too Old to Dream," a few monkeys and snakes, a striptease act and some sword swallowers, and the street peddlers with their balloons, masks, fried octopus, bean paste cakes and spun sugar cones, we followed the crowd into the near by field.

JAPANESE UNRESTRICTED

It was a large field circled by a low fence and open to the sky, which was grey and drizzling. The ground was muddy and the seating was almost non-existent. Just a few benches and straw mats on the ground. Despite all this it was the gayest two hours I have spent in Japan, and I have not seen the Japanese people as unrestricted before or since. The crowd predominantly male, sat around on the wet mats drinking Japanese beer from huge earthenware containers, eating, spitting, laughing, or cheering on their favorites. In between the wrestling bouts one drunken but [illegible] Japanese decided he was built for wrestling too. He [illegible] cheered mightily by his mates and started to strip for action. He was interrupted and dragged off at a fairly crucial point by two ring officials, but wandered back again and repeated the process, the crowd being very good natured and very happy about the whole thing.

The actual wrestling series which seemed to go on indefinitely to everyone's satisfaction, was between wrestlers from Nagasaki and the neighboring cities of Fukuoka and Oita. The names of the various team members and the cities they represented were announced in Japanese over the loudspeaker. As were the results of the match. So far as we could tell, and we must have seen 20 or 30 different bouts, Nagasaki seemed to be well in the lead. We felt quite partisan for her too after only a few days stay in the place.

AMATEUR WRESTLERS

Since it seemed to be an [illegible] one Sumo wrestlers [illegible] who weigh between 200 and 300 pounds, are considered to be the world's fattest athletes.

They play in a [illegible] year in Tokyo and Osaka as well as a few local engagements throughout Japan and they are [illegible] per second of work among the somewhere in the 20 to 30 highest paid men in Japan.

The wrestlers we saw in Nagasaki were leaner and younger, weighing about 140-160 pounds and looking like students, artisans or local athletes [illegible] years of age group.

ONLY FEW SECONDS

Sumo itself is a short wrestling bout [illegible] men. Their aim is to push each other down so that some portion of the body other than the feet touches the ground or so that one contestant is pushed completely out of the tiny ring. Surprisingly enough most bouts are over in a few seconds, only a few lasting up to a minute or two. Equally surprising, everyone is good humored, no one gets hurt. Or at least that was so on the [illegible] I saw it.

Our two opposing teams of six men each marched in from the back and lined up on either side of the sumo ring. Then they bowed deeply to the opposing side and sat down cross-legged. They were dressed in nothing but loin cloths, although the referee and the four judges who sat at the corners of the ring were most [illegible] and soberly [illegible].

RELIGIOUS SIGNIFICANCE

Sumo, which is of very ancient origin [illegible] [illegible] much bigger and seemingly much better opponent. I liked the defeated opponent very [illegible]

REFUSES BEER

Meanwhile a great deal of cheering and applause had been going on from a [illegible] group of [illegible] on our right. There were eight or 10 of them all crouched on the same straw mat and all sharing their Japanese beer out of the largest bottle I have ever seen. One little fellow with a lively Mortimer Snerd face and a great [illegible] get to his feet and wave on his favorites until he was tugged down by his slightly more sober mates. I caught the eye of one of them once and made the mistake of smiling. In a moment two of them were over stretching beside me and offering me a drink from the largest beer crock in Japan and undoubtedly the dirtiest cup. It was a terrible decision to have to make because I hate Japanese beer just as much as I hated offending them by refusing. The deciding factor was the thought of the thousand germs per inch on that cracked cup. Bowing very low and very often, and using my politest Japanese to thank them very much for the honor, I managed to refuse.

We left [illegible] the afternoon. I will never know, I suppose, if Nagasaki won, since I can't read the sports pages in Japanese. [illegible]

ON HOW TO STAY

YOUNG, ACTIVE and HEALTHY!

LET MARTIN PRETORIUS

NUTRITIONIST, AUTHOR, WORLD TRAVELER,

SHOW YOU THE WAY TO HEALTH & HAPPINESS

AND A GLORIOUS, NEW

ZEST for LIVING!

BY MAKING A FEW SIMPLE CHANGES IN YOUR EATING AND LIVING HABITS

WHO IS MARTIN PRETORIUS? He is a nutritionist, world traveler [illegible] [illegible] Pretorius family which migrated from Holland to South Africa during the early adventurous days of the Dutch East India Company. The city of Pretoria was named after General Martinus Pretorius, founder and first president of the Transvaal Dutch Republic of South Africa.

[illegible] service of the South African government Martin Pretorius came in close contact with the primitive peoples of that country. He was impressed with their well developed bodies and [illegible] Continued observation brought the realization that these people did not have headaches, "jumpy nerves," [illegible] poor eyesight. Nor did they suffer from arthritis, catarrh, [illegible] asthma, [illegible] diabetes, skin diseases, nervousness, constipation, heartburn, indigestion, rheumatism, ulcers. Furthermore these natives had no cancer, heart trouble and [illegible] high blood pressure.

But as soon as these [illegible] natives migrated to the cities and adopted [illegible] ways of living and eating, he noted that they began to suffer from the same ailments and diseases responsible for so much unhappiness among civilized people everywhere.

Investigation of the causes of this change was for Martin Pretorius the beginning of a lifetime career of study, research and service to mankind.

WHEN CAN YOU HEAR PRETORIUS have him help you as he has helped thousands all over the world?

ADMISSION . . . 50¢

HOW DID PRETORIUS get his first clue as to why civilized people break down and age physically sooner than they should? By observing how the primitives in South Africa lost both health and happiness, once they adopted "city-ways." Dr. Martin G[illegible], nationally recognized old age specialist recently, stated that Science has already proven that life can be prolonged one third [illegible] present knowledge. [illegible] to the human body, Martin Pretorius [illegible] [illegible] GOOD C[illegible]

Poor Circulation and Poor [illegible] prevent the body from being properly nourished regardless of the quality of the food consumed.

GOOD CIRCULATION can make you more active, look and feel younger, improve poor eyesight and [illegible] tone up flabby, sagging tissues and improve all body functions. Chronic FATIGUE and SLEEPLESSNESS may be due to sluggish circulation.

BETTER NUTRITION makes possible greater vitality, glowing health, energetic [illegible] principles taught by Martin Pretorius [illegible] more energy. See the mysterious life force that must be present in your food, filmed through ultra microscopes. See why the absence of [illegible] responsible for many of our happiness-destroying [illegible] [illegible] the five different types of over weight, why the so-called "fattening" foods fail to make underweight people gain weight, [illegible] and the loss of physical vigor and efficiency.

To be well nourished one must have GOOD CIRCULATION and GOOD BLOOD. It takes more than just eating nutritionally good foods to make good blood. Learn the [illegible] basic requirements that must be fulfilled to get into your blood everything needed to nourish every organ, gland and tissue in your body.

WHO benefits? YOU ARE THE ONE. Do you look and feel older than you really are? Do you suffer increasingly from sleeplessness, [illegible] chronic fatigue and the like? This need not happen to you. Martin Pretorius has helped thousands of others. He can help YOU! With this wonderful, natural way to health he has met and conquered problems similar to your own. Avail yourself of this priceless knowledge. It can transform your life! With greater health and energy will come greater happiness, greater usefulness, greater prosperity and security. You will become a NEW, VIBRANT YOU!

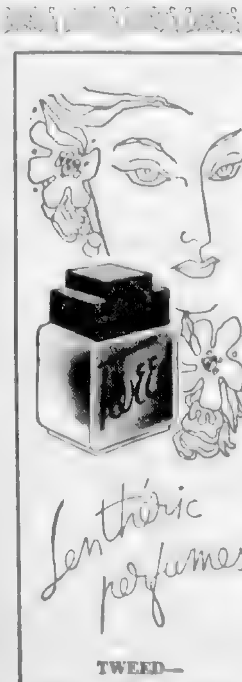

HERE'S WHAT PEOPLE ARE SAYING ABOUT PRETORIUS

"We are particularly pleased with the response we are getting from your [illegible]"

"I have had the pleasure of hearing Martin Pretorius twice and thoroughly enjoyed both lectures." [illegible] Assistant Dean of Women, Boston University

"His lecture proved not only to be very interesting but unusually helpful. The fact that the audience remained for two hours and were then reluctant to go is ample evidence of the attitude of his hearers." FRANK [illegible] President, Northeastern University

"After hearing one of your lectures on Food [illegible] I was so impressed with your broad knowledge of the subject that I was pleased when you addressed our Physical Directors' Society at their regular meeting at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. The members present were unanimous in endorsing your work." GEORGE L. [illegible] State Director of Physical Education

Where on Earth

Is The "City Of The Blind"?

by TED ATWOOD

As news of the A-bomb and the H-bomb crowd the headlines, and the world-wide race for armaments continues to rush forward, some people sleep less soundly of a night than they used to. They stock their cellars with emergency kits, they mark the nearest air raid havens and some even dig shelters in their own backyards. But the people of Dizful, Iran, trouble with none of these things. They don't have to. They live underground!

A desert town located 90 miles north of the Persian Gulf, Dizful is reputed to be the hottest place on earth. Its temperature frequently soars to an almost incredible high of 189 degrees in the sun. To escape the searing heat, its inhabitants have built more than half of their town below the earth's surface.

As if this were not enough, savage sandstorms often lash across the open countryside for days at a time, forcing the natives to take cover against the very desert itself. And in their lamp-lit subterranean homes, their babies are born—children who never see the light of day until they are a year old. Then, as they are carried above ground for the first time, the sudden shock of light weakens their eyes to the point where partial, or sometimes even complete, blindness is the result. So Dizful has also earned the luckless name of the "city of the blind."

In fact, even the natives can only name one advantage to living in the place; there aren't any flies around. The little pests just can't stand the climate!

Manhattan Canadians Celebrate

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian Club of New York, celebrating its 50th birthday this fall, began its meetings in a $2-a-night room. Today it pays more than $100,000 a year for its luxurious quarters in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

An original membership of 20 has grown to more than 1,400. These are largely Canadians or former Canadians living in New York who find the club a continuing link with their native land. Canadians holding out-of-town membership often make the club their headquarters on visits.

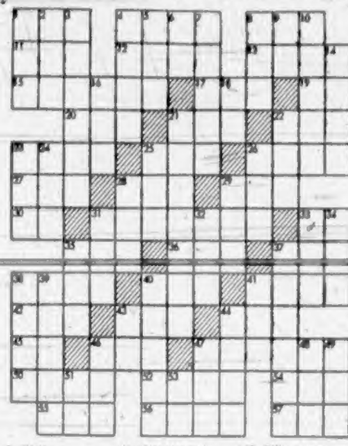

The Canadian Club of New York, organized in 1903 under the presidency of W. T. Robson, from Lindsay, Ont., was an offshoot of an earlier organization, founded in 1885, which had run into difficulties.

For more than 20 years the club has occupied the 18th and 19th floors of a wing of the Waldorf. Its facilities include dining and reception rooms, overnight guest rooms, a library, billiards and pool, a roof garden, and a bar.

In the First World War the club raised more than $100,000 for war relief and victims of the 1917 Halifax explosion.

Winning Contract

By Howard Schenken and Richard L. Frey

This is one of Life Master Dick Miller's favorite hands. Dick runs duplicate games and gives bridge lessons in a typical small-city stronghold of bridge, York, Pennsylvania, where his own enthusiasm for a great game evokes like enthusiasm among his fellow townspeople.

Two things guided Dick to the winning play on this deal. One is the feeling that every star player gets sometimes: a feeling that he knows where the cards are by some mysterious sixth sense that reaches out into the aura like radar and comes back with the message that locates the missing cards. The other guide is probably a kind of perversity which causes a player to prefer to bring home a contract that can't actually be made, rather than one that is easy.

West opened the king of diamonds. North took the ace and East dropped the deuce. Next came the king of spades, and again East slid a deuce onto the table. Something about the way those deuces were played led Dick to decide that the club finesse on which declarer had been counting was probably going to go sour.

So Dick made a brave play. The percentage play, in view of the double and in view of the fact that it was the only way the hand could be made against proper defense, was to take the club finesse. If that went wrong, no one could criticize. But Dick was convinced that he couldn't win the hand that way, so he promptly led the club ace from dummy and dropped the queen from his hand. Next came a low club, and East got fooled. He played a low one and let South win the trick with the nine.

South was able to ruff two spades, surrendering only one heart trick, to make the doubled slam.

Changes After Stalin's Death Matter of Course to Russians

Dan Berger, editor of the Oberlin Review, of Oberlin College, Ohio, was one of three American college students who recently visited Russia with the approval of both the Russian and American governments. The following article gives some of his impressions while behind the Iron Curtain.

BY DAN BERGER

OBERLIN, Ohio (NANA)—Soviet policy changed a great deal when Stalin died, but the Russians I met accept it all as if nothing has happened.

The editors of Komsomolskaya Pravda, newspaper for youth, with 1,200,000 readers, denied the change from Stalin to Malenkov makes any difference. Economic necessity, they say, dictates everything. First they had to industrialize. Now that battle's won, so they work on agriculture, which is lagging. That this change occurs when the old man died is mere coincidence.

No attempt at a Malenkov cult, similar to the Lenin and Stalin cults, is being made. His picture isn't around much more than Voroshilov and Molotov. Stalin and Lenin are everywhere. But westerners in Moscow tell me Stalin's face isn't nearly as evident as it once was.

SOME EMBARRASSMENT

Beria, of course, is a source of some embarrassment. Our guides in the Tretyakov Gallery of Russian Art had a hard time explaining why his face wasn't to be seen. We knew it had been there a while back. More than one place we saw a vacant hook on the wall. It had to be Beria's old spot. In Kiev University library a student admitted Lavrenti had been there on the wall.

We gave our Moscow interpreter such a hard time over Beria, she put us in our place. "There's your Beria," she said. We looked up. He was in a mosaic on the ceiling of one of the larger subway platforms, looking down. His face was just a small one in a crowd of dignitaries. They hadn't gotten around to chiseling him off yet.

The Komsomolskaya Pravda editors didn't want to say why Beria was a traitor. Finally they gave in and said Beria wouldn't accept group rule as opposed to the old one-boss system.

RUMOR TRIED

We tried the rumor of Beria's escape on a few people. Nobody could believe it. They laughed or chalked it up to capitalist propaganda. "He's in custody, waiting trial," said one Muscovite.

"Where?" we asked, and "when?" No answer.

Our Moscow guide was a bit perplexed over questions of when Stalin's body would be on view, next to Lenin, in the sacred mausoleum on Red Square. She had thought it would be last May Day, but now she just doesn't know. Crowds line up in front of it all day long, but since Stalin's death they haven't been allowed to enter. Two guards stand motionless in front. Unauthorized persons are forbidden to photograph the tomb.

CONCERN FOR PEACE

Big feature of the new Russian policy is everyone's concern for peace. Friendship among nations was spoken of everywhere we went. We didn't always agree on who stood for peace, however.

Furthermore, the Russians saw no aggression in anything the Soviets have done. The satellite nations of Eastern Europe they regard as "free people's democracies." They scoffed when I spoke of Russian domination.

We also disagreed over who was the aggressor in Korea, though we all expressed hope for permanent peace there, and eventual reuniting of that nation. Nobody charged germ warfare. That noise was soft-pedaled with the peace offensive.

"Hate America" propaganda is definitely out of date by half a year. The Tretyakov Art Gallery has cut its anti-American cartoons down to about half a dozen. Posters on the same theme no longer line the streets. In fact they're almost impossible to find.

A group of students in Leningrad, asked by me what they read of America, answered with fervor, our revolution for freedom, western pioneers and cowboys.

AFFECTS EVERYTHING

The government policy change affects everything. On the stage anti-American melodramas are being replaced by satire of Russian foibles. The hottest news on the Tass wire is likely to be about the potato crop. But this doesn't mean they think their government has been in the wrong. They are more likely to think we are the victims of ours.

Men Are Models At WA Bazaar

LADYSMITH — The evening bazaar held by the St. John's Anglican WA in St. John's Hall was successful, with president Mrs. W. H. Bryant as the official hostess, and members of the Men's Church Committee wearing their "most fashionable gowns" acted as serviteurs.

Tea tables were decorated with chrysanthemums.

Miss Norma and Miss Verna McLaren looked after the fishpond; Mrs. A. E. Uncle Wiggily Story - By Howard Garis

GRANDPA WHACKUM'S

Uncle Wiggily was so surprised at hearing Pat Butter tell about Billie Wagtail, the goat boy, being lost, that, for a moment, the jolly old rabbit gentleman with the pink, twinkling nose, didn't quite know what to do. He hung up the telephone after getting Mr. Butter's message and started back toward the supper table in his hollow stump bungalow.

"Is anything the matter, Daddy?" Buster asked as he saw that his father did not again start eating his lettuce pudding.

"Yes, Buster, something is the matter," answered Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, dear me, hum suz dud and a fried egg with molasses on it!" exclaimed Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy. "Is there anything the matter with your lettuce pudding, Mr. Longears?"

"Oh, no, indeed, Janie," replied the rabbit uncle. "The pudding is very fine. But I don't believe I shall have time to eat it."

"Why not?" asked Bunty, the orphan rabbit. She was eating her lettuce pudding and thought it was delicious. "Why haven't you time, Uncle Wiggily, to eat your dessert?"

"Because we must start a night search for Jackie, Peetie and Billie the goat," answered Mr. Longears.

"Didn't Billie the goat come home from school?" asked Buster.

"No, he didn't," replied Mr. Longears. "That was Mr. Butter who just telephoned me. Billie isn't home yet. Mr. Butter is worried. He is going to get Chief, the police dog, and we shall go looking for Jackie, Peetie and Billie. Excuse me, Nurse Jane. Please put my lettuce pudding in the refrigerator and I will eat it when I come back."

"I'll keep it hot for you — I mean I'll keep it cold for you," promised the muskrat lady housekeeper. "Oh, I do hope you can find the lost boys!"

"I think we shall," said Mr. Longears as he twinkled his pink nose on the left paw side. "Mr. Butter said he would call Chief. We can start the night search from here."

"And it is night now, isn't it?" asked Bunty.

"Yes, it is quite dark," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Would you like me and my talking doll, Priscilla, to help you look for Jackie, Peetie and Billie?" the orphan rabbit asked.

"Priscilla is smarter than you think she is," said Bunty. "She can sing and walk and she knows a lot. But we aren't coming where we aren't wanted, are we, Priscilla, sweetie pie ums darlingums?" Bunty cuddled her doll in her paws.

"Cut out the baby talk!" exclaimed Buster. "We fellows have a lot of work to do on this night search. Wait! What's that?"

The siren horn of Chief's police dog squad car was heard out in the front yard. Then a voice called. It was Mr. Butter who spoke.

"Hi, Wiggy! Are you ready? We're going to start the night search to find Jackie, Peetie and Billie, my little goat boy. And I have plenty of Swiss cheese with me, full of holes, in case we find them and they are hungry!"

"Are you there, Uncle Wiggily?" called Chief as the police squad car came to a stop in front of the bungalow.

"Yes, I'm here, Chief," the rabbit gentleman answered.

"Then come on, Wiggy!" bleated the goat gentleman grocer. "We must find those lost boys! Where do you suppose they might be?"

"I think," answered Uncle Wiggily, "that Jackie, Billie and Peetie just wandered in the woods and got lost."

"But we shall find them!" barked Chief. "Get ready, Sergeant Bill. We must travel fast!"

"The gas tank is full!" barked Sergeant Bill. "Let's go!"

Just as the police dog squad car was about to start off on the night search, with Uncle Wiggily, Buster and several other helpers, a voice was heard calling:

"Uncle Wiggily! Uncle Wiggily! Wait a moment. I have news for you!"

"Who are you?" called Mr. Longears into the darkness.

"I am Grandpa Wackum the beaver," was the answer. "I have big news for you. The Amusement Raft has been taken away!"

Something is going to happen. I can tell you about it tomorrow if the cocoanut custard cake doesn't try to walk upstairs all alone and fall down.

Hydro-Therapy Tank Bought for Hospital

A hydro-therapy tank to be used in the treatment of post-polio patients is being purchased for Royal Jubilee Hospital by the Victoria North Kiwanis Club, it was announced Friday by J. C. Thow, chairman of the hospital board of directors.

CHEQUE PRESENTED

Mr. Thow said the service club had presented the hospital with a cheque for $500 to make the purchase possible and pledged the necessary balance. The amount of the North Kiwanis gift might total $2,000.

BCHIS is committed to pay one-third of such purchases.

A similar tank was recently donated to St. Joseph's Hospital and several patients have been transferred there for treatment from Royal Jubilee.

Teachers Criticized For Loyalty Pledge

SOOKE — D. J. De Rochie, member of the Sooke school board, in an address this week to local ratepayers, expressed disapproval and surprise that new school teachers swear their loyalty to the B.C. Teachers' Federation "rather than to the pupils and the public they are supposed to serve."

Commenting on the board's negotiations on wages, Mr. De Rochie reported that teachers' requests for salary increases varying from 15 to 20 per cent, had gone to arbitration and the increase finally decided on was four per cent.

Mr. De Rochie said the teacher's job was undoubtedly becoming more and more difficult because of the changing nature of the times and the more general disregard for law and order. Both, he said, have had their effect on students and consequently increased the problem of discipline.

He charged that there are courses on the curriculum in which teachers themselves have little confidence and that it was difficult under such conditions to transmit much enthusiasm to pupils.

Bus Service Cut Annoys Jordan River Residents

Sooke schedule also will be changed to give two round trips daily except Sunday, when there will be one, and Wednesday, when no runs will be made.

Complaints of residents about the service will be the chief topic at the next meeting of the Sooke-Jordan River Chamber of Commerce, chamber official J. M. Elliott reports.

Six Bids On Milk Similar

Identical bids from six local dairies to Royal Jubilee Hospital has the administrator, George Masters, "kind of worried."

"It seems strange to me that each tender should be for 23 cents a quart," he said.

"A one-cent break on the price isn't much. [illegible] price to householders is 24 cents.) We may be forced to import the 80 gallons a day we use from the Mainland," said the hospital official.

NOT FREE ENTERPISE

Speaking Thursday to the Chamber of Commerce's civic affairs group, Mr. Masters said "It's not free enterprise when six firms get together and bid the same price.

"We don't want to go outside for milk, but we may have to. There's something wrong. The producer gets $5.90 for 10 gallons of milk but the price to us is $9.20."

Royal Jubilee Hospital uses $28,000 worth of milk each year, said Mr. Masters.

Schoolmates To Be Honored By 'Old Boys'

Brentwood College "old boys" will gather at the college chapel on Sunday to participate in memorial services for ex-schoolmates who died in the Second World War.

Rev. Norman Lowe, incumbent at Brentwood Chapel, will conduct the services. An "old boy" will read the lesson and another the list of names of the school's war dead.

The "old boys" will hold a reunion dinner Saturday at the Empress Hotel. More than 100 are expected to attend the function.

Alumni president is Pat Ritchie of Vancouver; secretary-treasurer, Dr. John Schinbein, of Shaughnessy Military Hospital; Victoria vice-president, K. Symons.

A number of "old boys," now prominent in many walks of life, are expected to attend. Brentwood graduates now live in the Far East, South America, Japan, Europe and the United States.

Brentwood College was restroyed by fire four years ago. Only the chapel and one school building, now the vicarage, remains. Brentwood survives in the house named for it in affiliation with the University School campus on the slopes of Mount Tolmie and in its alumni.

The Sunday memorial services are set for 10.30 a.m.

BULLETS FELL BOLD RIOTERS IN TRIESTE PIAZZA

Justice Relaxes for Romance

British justice has relaxed to permit Tommy Flynn, 22-year-old sailor, to marry the dark-eyed Arab slave girl he smuggled home to England. The lovers were freed from jail, where they faced sentences for violating immigration laws. She had been smuggled from Basra, Iraq, where she worked as a slave. Tommy slipped her aboard ship, past the guards, dressed in men's clothing, and hid her in a cramped locker during the voyage home. Here are Tommy and his bride, Jean Kawahkib, 19, leaving church in Durham after their marriage.—(Central Press Canadian.)

British Vessel Under Attack

HONG KONG (UP)—The Royal Navy announced the British freighter Ss. Hydralock was attacked off the China mainland today by two warships and an airplane which, authorities said, were unidentified.

The ship reported its bridge was sprayed with armor-piercing bullets, but there were "no casualties."

A message from the Hydralock, the navy said, stated it had been intercepted at 5 a.m. (1 p.m. PST), 25 miles southeast of Amoy on the Red-held China mainland by one "unidentified warship."

"The Hydralock was requested to follow one of the warships," the Royal Navy announcement said, "but when she asked where they were bound, there was no reply."

At 9.14 a.m. the Hydralock reported she was "attacked by unidentified aircraft off Chinchu. At 10.23 a.m. the Hydralock reported it was entering the pilotage area of Chuan Chow to which it was bound," the Royal Navy said.

There was no announcement as to what type cargo the ship was carrying.

The Royal Navy was not speculating where the warships came from or what flag they flew.

Earlier, Globe Wireless in San Francisco reported receiving an urgent message that the ship was under attack by a Flying Fortress bomber off the China coast. There was no mention of surface warships at that time.

Globe said the distress message from the vessel was intercepted here after being relayed by the Philippine freighter Dona Nati operating in the same general area.

Crusader Tar To Leave Jail

HONOLULU, T.H. (UP) — Canadian sailor Donald Gibson who "borrowed" an automobile and led city and military police on a 75-mile-an-hour chase recently, will be dismissed from city jail and turned over to his ship for disciplining.

Judge Albert M. Felix suspended his 30-day sentence to time served when assured the Canadian Navy is prepared to continue the 19-year-old youth's discipline once it gets its hands on him again.

Helen Keller 'Sees' President

Helen Keller, 73-year-old humanist who has been blind and deaf since birth, is shown as she "saw" President Eisenhower for the first time during a visit to the White House. Miss Keller asked if she might run her fingers over the president's face to get a better impression of him. The president smilingly consented. Said Miss Keller: "I felt a fine face. I felt courage and thought that carried him through such great years in the world's history." Mr. Eisenhower was the 10th president Miss Keller has met during her long and colorful career.—(Central Press Canadian.)

Mob Cries 'Assassins'

Reporter in Line of Fire Gives Close-Up Story

BY ALEX VALENTINE

He stood beside me as an icy Adriatic wind swept into great Piazza del Unita, Trieste's huge square, which is open on one side to the adjoining seafront.

Thousands of Italians stood with us in the square—all with arms raised menacingly toward the British-officered local police huddled on one side of the vast square. Veins stood out on the demonstrators' scarved necks as they screamed "assassins" at the police who have killed six demonstrators in riots.

In a solid, slow-moving mass, the mob edged forward. With hardly a pause, it swept up chairs and tables from a cafe on the square corner, smashed furniture and used the legs for weapons.

Thousands of hands dipped into pockets and emerged with stones. A man in front—the self-appointed ringleader—shouted "Now!" A thunderstorm of stones thudded against police helmets and uniforms.

"Assassins," chorused the crowd.

Then came the police, arms upraised with clubs. A sickening thud sounded in my ear. The slender student next to me went down like a sack as a club caught him across the shoulders.

WRONG MOVE

I fumbled in my pocket for my press card, then realized the gesture would be misunderstood, and ducked just in time to avoid a swipe of a police club.

Momentarily, the mob was driven back. The rioters crouched panting in doorways at the edge of the square. Police hurled tear gas bombs at them, but they held their ground.

The yelling, pushing, jostling mass moved back into the square and charged at a barricade of police jeeps. Torches made of chair legs were hurled into the jeeps.

A police whistle shrilled above the commotion. There was a moment of deathly silence. Police carbines cracked out—the same chilling sound the rioters heard Thursday night.

The carbines are designed to fire in bursts or single-shot. The police pressed the triggers and sprayed. Bullets filled the square.

They were around our ears, tugging our coatsleeves, spurting from the pavement, ricocheting wildly off walls.

HALF-SAID

I saw a student a few yards from me clutch his throat. He tried to shout "assassins." The word gurgled half-said in his mouth. He fell dead.

A middle-aged man hurried in fright toward the open seafront. He had only a few yards more to go to reach safety when he doubled over, shot in the legs. Seconds later the Piazza was empty of rioters except for those who lay dead or groaning on the blood-soaked pavement. Breathless and wild-eyed, the mob watched from corners. Bullets chipped off masonry and threw splinters in the eyes.

Gradually, the firing returned to single shots. They cracked out every few seconds.

Now came a new sound—the whine of ambulance sirens. Stretcher crews couldn't handle all of the victims. Private cars, their drivers waving white truce handkerchiefs, moved in to help.

Trails of blood led from the square to other victims who had collapsed in nearby streets.

POLICE BOMBED

The square became a battleground soon again as rioters faced the police with both fear and hatred contorting their features. Minutes of uneasy silence passed. A grenade hurtled

Spy Charge Hits Truman

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sensational charge by Attorney General Herbert Brownell that former president Truman promoted a known Soviet spy—who is dead—to high office, exploded a great new controversy Friday night with Truman and the Eisenhower regime virtually accusing each other of lying.

Friday's row opened with a statement by Brownell in a Chicago speech that the late Harry Dexter White, former assistant secretary of the treasury, was a spy for Russia. Brownell said the Federal Bureau of Investigation collected the evidence of White's spying and submitted a report to Truman through his military aide, Maj.-Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, in December, 1945.

"In the face of this information, and incredible though it may seem," Brownell said, "President Truman on January 23, 1946, nominated White . . . for the even more important position of executive director for the United States in the International Monetary Fund."

Truman quickly denounced Brownell's charges as "political." He said that "as soon as we found out White was wrong we fired him."

This brought a swift retort from the White House that Truman's statement about firing White was "not true."

Many Region. of U.S. Swept by Blowing Snow

By United Press

A blowing snowstorm hit New York City and the eastern seaboard Friday, while a similar storm swept over the great plains.

An old-fashioned nor'easter raked the east coast with cold, gusty winds and brought the first snow of the winter to New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., and other seaboard cities.

At New York the snow began falling at 11.30 a.m. and was expected to continue through the night.

Temperatures that hovered around freezing turned some of the snow to sleet and little of it stuck in the metropolis. But the snow was expected to accumulate with colder temperatures after nightfall.

The snow canceled racing at the Garden State track at Camden, N.J., and an aerial show to commemorate the 50th anniversary of flight at New York's Mitchell Field was called off.

The snow piled up to two inches in the nation's capital, heaviest early snow since 1925. Philadelphia got one to two inches.

The Chicago weather bureau said the eastern snow extended from the mountains of South Carolina to New York, with wind gusts reaching 20 miles per hour.

Wintry temperatures extended from the east coast to the great plains where a howling storm dumped up to seven inches of snow on western Nebraska. Communications were disrupted by falling utility lines.

Kansas got snow up to five inches and sleet in the western half of the state. Wind gusts were clocked up to 40 and 50 miles per hour. In some rural areas visibility was reported "practically zero."

Parts of Oklahoma and the Dakotas also felt the western storm.

Skies generally were clear elsewhere in the nation except for more rainy weather in the Pacific Northwest.

Russians Stage New Sweep

'Spies' Rounded Up

BERLIN (AP)—Russian zone secret police said Friday night that at least 100 East Germans have been snatched in a new, sweeping "spy" roundup.

The figure was made public by Erich Mielke, deputy chief of the force, who is currently making a round of speeches to whip up public sentiment against "Western agents, spies and saboteurs."

The new culprits are evidently in addition to those the Communists swept into their jails after the June 17 uprisings in a manhunt that stretched into the fall months.

The "one hundred" are all in the employ of the West German Republic and the "American counter-intelligence corps," Mielke declared. They were equipped with radio transmitters, "secret instructions" and weapons, he said.

The disclosure implied that a wave of trials is in the offing.

Two Men Die In Car Crash

VANCOUVER (CP) Two men were instantly killed Friday night when their car plowed into a light standard in downtown Vancouver.

U.S. Troops Stand Guard

TRIESTE (CP)—A company of United States infantry, with bayonets at the ready, was posted early today in Trieste's blood-spattered waterfront square where infuriated mobs fought Trieste police for seven hours Friday.

Six persons had been killed by Trieste police in three days of riotous demonstrations.

Dawn was considered a possible zero hour for new outbursts. There was a possibility of a martial law declaration.

The Allied military government announced Friday night that four demonstrators were killed and about 30 wounded by police gunfire. Three police were injured by a hand grenade.

Two demonstrators were killed and 15 wounded Thursday for a total of six dead and 48 injured in the 72 hours of rioting which was touched off by a police ban on flying the Italian flag over the city hall. Many of the demonstrators were Italian students and three of the dead were 15-year-olds.

Italian diplomats in London and Washington were ordered to protest the bloody incidents, backing up protests from Trieste city officials.

The British and American governments both blamed "irresponsible elements" in Trieste.

Consulates In Rome Attacked

ROME (Reuters) — Riot police were called out Friday as thousands of Italian students attacked British and American embassies and consulates throughout Italy.

At least 50 were arrested in Rome. About 13,000 students here cut classes to protest against police action in Trieste. Police used tear gas, fire hoses and nightstick charges to break up the Rome demonstrations.

The worst disorders were around the British consulate, where several thousand students burst through a police cordon and smashed nearly all the windows. They were finally dispersed by repeated police charges.

The British embassy, several miles from the centre of Rome and protected by thick walls, was not harmed.

Tank-Infantry Team Advances in Indo-China

In new action at the Red line around the base of Phu Nho Quan, U.S.-built fighters strafed the enemy in support of a French armored column which ran into "strong enemy resistance" five miles outside the fortress.—(Central Press Canadian.)

True Facts Kept Secret 200 Years

Canada Won by Spy

TORONTO (CP) — Lyman Jackes, Toronto historian and author, says the British won the Battle of the Plains of Abraham, which ended French rule in Canada 200 years ago, by espionage.

He said Thursday that Major Patrick MacKellar, a British agent, whom he called one of Canada's most remarkable heroes, paved the way for the British capture of Fort Louisburg and Quebec in the 1700's during the struggle between Britain and France in the Seven Years' War.

Mr. Jackes told the Toronto Rotary Club that MacKellar's log books were ordered forever sealed by the British cabinet for fear of stigmatizing descendants of Canadians who aided him in his work.

He said the story is partly confirmed by archivists in Ottawa, who admit having a few memoranda of Major MacKellar.

Mr. Jackes said he learned of Major MacKellar's exploits through a chance meeting with a clerk of the British War Office.

GREAT MYSTERY

"This MacKellar is the great mystery man of Canada. Up until a few years ago he was totally unknown to historians."

The author showed slides of MacKellar's only opened log book, which he said was brought to Canada in a safe at the request of the late Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Ottawa Museum authorities deny having such a book.

Mr. Jackes said he talked with Major MacKellan's descendants in Kent, England, and saw a portrait of the major. With it was a letter from the British War Office forbidding reproduction of the picture. He added:

"Discovery of the records in War Office cellars was one of the greatest discoveries in Canadian history.

"It is to Major MacKellar that Maj.-Gen. James Wolfe owes his place in history.

IN BACK DOOR

"It was MacKellar's espionage which took Field Marshal Jeffrey Amherst and his second-in-command, General Wolfe, through Fort Louisburg's back door in 1758. He learned of a secret trail leading from a cove 12 miles up the coast to the back door of the mighty Cape Breton fortress."

Mr. Jackes said he is certain the sealed books tell how Major MacKellar smuggled himself into the fortress of Quebec the following year to enlarge upon a map of the fortifications which he obtained while serving as a British agent in Paris.

Major MacKellar told General Wolfe of the path up the cliffs from the St. Lawrence River to the Plains of Abraham and on September 13, 1759, scaled the bluffs with 27,000 British regulars.
